PRAISE FOR PILLOW PARTNERS

Looks like I'll have to pick up two copies of the January '89 issue. I'll wear out this one in no time. My major fetishes are girl's buttocks and feet, which, when coupled with tan lines, make me lose control. "Tanya: The Tight Stuff" is the most eatable centerfold you've had in a long time. I hope to be buying a video of her very soon. Beaver Hunt girls Angel, Kathy, Debbie and especially lickety-split Renee will be pillow partners with me for many lonely nights. Renee's tongue holds more possibilities for me than a Rubik's Cube.

BUM RAPS

I just got the December '88 issue. Talk about your special holiday issue! "Shoot-Out at Slippery Rock" was a real turn-on. As a proud Texan (the only kind of Texan), my six-shooter stood up and saluted Luke and Luann at Lake Powell. And the only way to improve Beaver Hunt was by making it bigger, which you did. Debra's tattoos are a kinky thrill; Tracy, Angel and Jasmine are real babes too. However, Lisa is my favorite. Her two-photo striptease drove me crazy, especially that great ass shot. Wow! For me, though, the piece de resistance of the December HUSTLER was "Priscilla: 38 in the Shade." Her 38s are fine, but what really got me off was Priscilla's butt! From beginning to end, we are treated to great shots of Priscilla's beautiful bum: her rounded cheeks, her pouty nether lips and her cute little bungle. I dream of kissing her puckered pink hole. Keep up the good work, HUSTLER.

For ass men of all persuasions, HUSTLER is proud to unveil a magazine just for you: HUSTLER Honeybuns, which goes on sale January 31, 1989. Watch our rears!

James Baes has the greatest job in the world. He gets paid money to photograph women like "Priscilla: 38 in the Shade" (December '88). Page 50 is every man's idea of the perfect butt. At age 53, I've seen a lot of good-looking young girls, but hers is the sweetest ass.

STIMULATE! EDUCATE!

I just finished the December '88 issue. I must compliment your photo artists: I counted at least six pictures showing puffy labia majora. Hot stuff! Keep educating the people with AIDS Watch, political articles, environmental articles, the hazards of smoking and drinking and the possible dangers of legal and illegal drugs. Keep up the good work.

Tanya: The Tight Stuff

TWO SLANTS ON 'BANG-KOK'

Bill Baker's article in the December issue "Bangkok: Paradise of Corruption" was interesting but not really surprising. Anybody who has spent time in Asia or other Third World toilets wouldn't be surprised either. Gooks, wogs, spics and camel jockeys: all the same. Just see how they behave here in Los Angeles!

—C. J.
Los Angeles, California

This is in reply to the December HUSTLER article entitled "Bangkok: Paradise of Corruption." Bill Baker's report has been written in the high-handed manner of one possessed of an alleged superior culture. It is surprising, coming from a publication that supposedly thumbs its nose at the prevailing sexual status quo. Shock is expressed at finding a society in which full sexual expression of every kind is not only permitted, but even encouraged. The article does a disservice to the people of Thailand, who offer an arena where total sexual freedom prevails without guilt or repression. One can choose to read about the so-called "Wicked East," but the better approach is to reach out to these fun-loving sexually exciting people who have found the joy of sex and are willing to share it with others—albeit for a price.

—A.S.C.
New York, New York

"For a price"—like buying and selling nine-year-old farm girls who are hooked on smack and beaten into submission? This is not freedom of sexual expression.

BLACK MOODS

First I would like to say to all of your bigoted readers, "Fuck you!" I am aware that your magazine has an extreme prejudice towards blacks based on your bigoted cartoons, but I choose to ignore it because of the beautiful layouts. There is no better magazine, period, on the market as far as photography is concerned. Frankly, I can't imagine buying any magazine but yours, but I am also concerned about the increasing severity of your racist cartoons. The "Punch 'O' Spook" cartoon was very racist and done in extremely poor taste. If you really hate blacks that much, then you should change your name to KKK's HUSTLER Magazine and I'll stop buying it. Until then I'll keep jacking off in unison with all the other readers.

Houston, Texas

You really have a great magazine. Your photos are expertly done, and your cartoons are always in good taste. I really liked your December issue with the cartoons "Punch 'O' Spook" and the other depicting a nigger with his pet. That's one of the great freedoms we have in America. We can feel any way we choose about a certain group of people. I appreciate each and every one of you at HUSTLER for your creative ideas. And if I'm ever in a position to carry out my desire, I'll line up each person that's associated with HUSTLER—from Larry Flynt all the way down—and blow your motherfucking brains out. For the women, I will get my .22 and strip each one naked and nail you to a cross and empty my .22 in your pussies. Then I'd get my 12-gauge, put the barrel right on your head, pull the trigger and yell, "I'm a nigger."

—Dewi C.
Tyler, Texas

No need to yell: No white man in Texas would waste good pussy.

BEAVER BALLOTING

Just got the December '88 issue. You have to do a layout with Beaver Hunt's Tracy, the sexiest woman I've seen in any magazine.

—Name Withheld
Raleigh, North Carolina

Please do a spread of Sharon from the December Beaver Hunt. She should either be Beaver of the Year or a HUSTLER Honey. Beaver Hunt is the first thing I turn to in HUSTLER, and I couldn't believe the woman of my dreams, offering me her big tits, juicy pink pussy and creamy white thighs in fishnet stockings.

Sharon has it all. I'd gladly give my left nut to suck and fuck her in the threesomes she wants. How 'bout Sharon in a HUSTLER video? Larry, sign her up! Playbore and Pent-up are for Boy Scouts.

—J. M.
Chicago, Illinois

Anyone into large-breasted women who show pink should check out our newest publication, HUSTLER BUSTY BEAUTIES. It's on sale at newsstands from coast to coast, or check out the subscription ad on page 113.

HUSTLER always gets me off. The Beaver Hunt section always gets me off the best because I know that the girls must get turned on by having their pictures and delicious fantasies published. December's Beaver Hunt is the best I've ever seen. I'm glad Tracy realized her fantasy by appearing nude in HUSTLER. I would love to see Jasmine's fantasy come true in the pages of your magazine. I would also like to say that I do not agree with your reader from Austin, Texas, who thinks HUSTLER runs too many features of X-rated actresses. I like to see them. I am white, but I also like black women. Variety is the spice of life.

—R. R.
Oak Hill, West Virginia

ANGEL GRACES PAGES

My December '88 issue just arrived today. Lord have mercy! Beaver Hunt's Angel from Olathe, Kansas, is by far the most bodacious woman to ever grace your pages. I've shot my wad three times already. Please show more of her. Where the hell is Olathe anyway?

—B. O.
Jacksonville, Florida

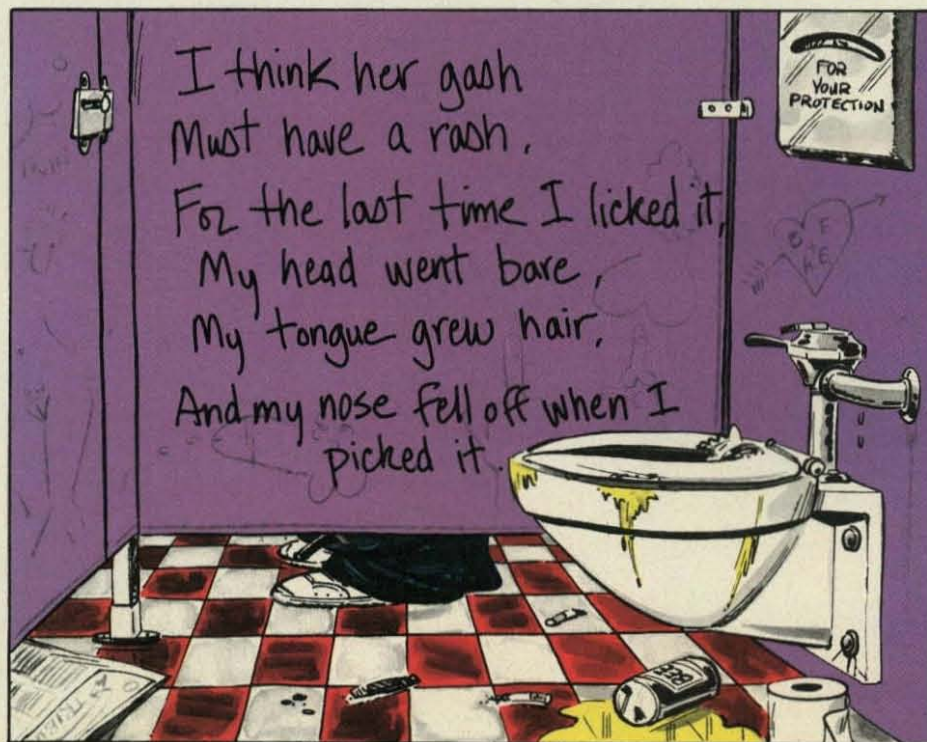

VOTING BOOTH OR CRAPPER?

I wholeheartedly agree with HUSTLER's choice of Asshole of the Month. It is sad that I, like other Americans, will not be voting in this election. I have no other choice. I refuse to vote for any individual affiliated with either party. HUSTLER is correct in stating that the American people want a party or an individual that isn't tied to defense contractors, oil companies, big business or foreign dictators. The deficit, trade imbalance, drugs, crime, the environment and education are what we are concerned about. Ninety percent of all politicians only care about their personal gain. They've flushed our country down the Johnny Carson.

ASSHOLE OF THE MONTH

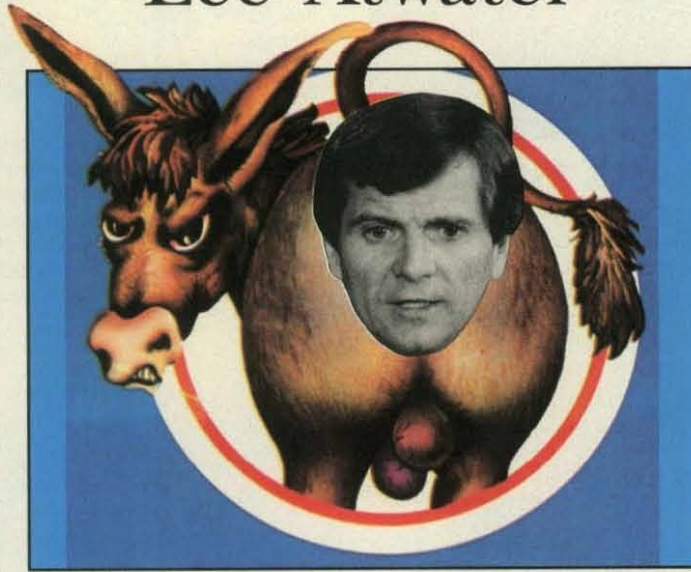

For continually raping the political process and for deceitful, McCarthylike tactics as George Bush's campaign manager, political sleazeball Lee Atwater is Asshole of the Month.

Though this repugnant Republican reamhole is widely derided for his nasty, negative campaigns, Atwater was nonetheless rewarded after the election by being named as Chairman of the Republican National Committee, thus insuring that state and local races all over the country will be marked by the same excrement that stained the universally despised presidential race.

Though the scurrilous Atwater prides himself as a Southern good ol' boy from South Carolina, during the campaign this cock head exploited the racist tendencies of the region by spotlighting Michael Dukakis's ethnic heritage and by making black felon Willie Horton's rape of a white woman a major topic. At the beginning of the campaign Atwater proudly forecasted his racist strategy, boasting, "By the time this election is over, Willie Horton will be a household name."

This bile blaster has proven he'll stoop to any lie to win a campaign, even if he has to feast on old prejudices and reopen painful wounds in his own backyard. In 1980, while handling a Republican congressional campaign in South Carolina, Atwater planted a story about the Democratic opponent being treated by a psychiatrist for depression. (Sound familiar?) Then white conservatives received phone calls in a "poll" that asked them what they thought about the Democratic candidate being a member of the NAACP!

When similar smears and lies about Dukakis surfaced last year, it reeked of Atwater, whose hand in organized deceit was noticed even by Newsweek magazine, which gave the sleazoid credit for "one of the most negative national campaigns since the McCarthy era." When Atwater wasn't spewing scum behind the scenes or sling-ing shit in front of the cameras as one of the official "spin doctors" of the campaign, he was having fellow asshole George Bush play ventriloquist's dummy for his litany of slime against Dukakis. Even his supporters admit that Atwater's negative bullshit was out of control.

Though negative campaigning didn't begin with Atwater, nobody has worked harder to shove it up the ass of the American voter. Now this sack of shit is in control of setting a sleazy tone for the whole country.

A LIGHT FROM HEAVEN

Let's face it, listening to other people's sordid confessions can be a drag. What's a soul-scrubber to do to relax? Dip into the communion wine? Instead, inhale the spirited taste of Holy Smokes, the low-tar, low-nicotine, high-pleasure cigarettes, the divine new religious habit even the Pope himself can light up while kicking back in the Vatican erotica collection. Trendy clove flavoring makes Holy Smokes indistinguishable from incense, so your parishioners need never know the reason for your hacking cough.

BUTT OUT

Over the years, HUSTLER has maintained its tradition of being the pinkest sex magazine in America, but we haven't ignored another favorite part of the female anatomy—the rearend. And now, as a special treat for the discerning ass man, comes HUSTLER

HONEYBUNS Volume 1, a blockbuster one-of-a-kind edition featuring a dozen sexy babes with outstanding assets. Besides red-hot pictorials, there's erotic fiction, horny reader letters and no-holes-barred cartoons. HUSTLER HONEYBUNS is on sale at your favorite newsstand for $4.95 a crack, or order copies from Flynt Subscription Co., P.O. Box 67068, Los Angeles, CA 90034. Porn From the Past

FOR APPEARANCE'S SAKE . . .

Why leave that old smut lying around the house where the kids can find it? If you send it to us, you just might make $150 and see your tattered souvenir in the pages of HUSTLER. Send your shots to Porn From the Past, HUSTLER Magazine, 9171 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 300, Beverly Hills, CA 90210. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope if you want your photos returned.

You were expecting to see some gruesome surgical procedure, maybe? Come on, we've got more class than that.

ART ATTACK

The newest wave in modern art is the work of Jack Randy, whose interactive paintings have deeply touched art patrons at exhibitions across the country. It's the kind of creation that reaches out and grabs you, but this "hands-on" enjoyment isn't everyone's idea of a brush stroke of genius. Gallerygoers are advised to keep hands, arms and large breasts securely next to the body at all times.

NO-FRET FETTERS

Love Cuffs are soft, easy-to-remove, 100% washable bondage restraints that eliminate the problems of nasty bruises, rope burns and cleaning up cum stains. Even folks who find these S&M aspects pluses rather than problems might still like the durability of the abuser-friendly, easy-care tetherwear. Prices and ordering information are available from Hair on Fire, 1017 N. Cole Ave., Hollywood, CA 90038.

HOME SURGERY MADE EASY

This new Time-Live series of self-help books should prove extremely popular among financially strapped families who can no longer afford health insurance. As in all things, practice makes perfect, so you might want to consider testing your technique out on the pets, or perhaps the neighbor's children, before you get into the really serious operations.

FILM FACTS

Forbidden Films

This brief look at strange, sick new trends in underground X-rated fare reveals flicks you won't find in even the most progressive video shops, but perhaps if you send us lots of money, we could help you out.

HARD-CORE PORN

This isn't a tape you'd want to watch with the apple of your eye. Fruit fetishists go nuts for this stuff, but it's unlikely anyone else could stomach it. Says one anonymous hard-core producer, "I think of it as man's revenge against Eve, who got us all into this mess in the first place."

SNUFF MOVIES

Sure, you've heard of them. Perhaps you even know somebody who says he's seen one. But you didn't really think they existed, did you? Well, they do. Shot in the remotest parts of Great Britain, often featuring teenage runaways who won't be missed, snuff movies inevitably climax with the most gruesome ritual imaginable, a young woman brutally forced to shove ground tobacco up her nose until she begins sneezing violently. . . . Well, that's as much as we dare say.

SHOOTING to the TOP of the CHARTS

Hey, hey, we're the Junkees/And people say we've got shit for brains. . . . "Yes, just when you thought AIDS and the "war on drugs" meant you'd seen the last of them, the Junkees are back! This compilation album is chock full of hits, including "Last Vein to Clarkesville," "Pleasant I.V. Sunday," "A Little Bit C, a Little Bit You," "I'm Not Your Schlep; I'm Stoned" and many more. Those of you who've missed those mainlinin' musicians, come out of withdrawal, 'cause their new LP will speedball its way straight to your heart.

Nevada's Legal Whores: A Healthy Industry

Nevada activists and bigwigs, like Golden Nugget casino boss Steve Wynn, who are leading a movement to ban legalized prostitution in the Silver State should pay heed to two recent developments. First, from our "We Told You So" file, federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta conducted a study on disease and prostitution and discovered the lowest rate of AIDS infection among prostitutes in Nevada, the only state where the world's oldest profession is legal. In fact, the rate was zero percent, according to Dr. William W. Darrow, whose study of 37 legal hookers found them all healthy, if not wealthy and wise. The only kind of hooking in Wynn's territory, Las Vegas, is illegal, and therefore not monitored. Concerns about prostitution spreading disease seem better addressed by legalizing and scrutinizing gash-for-cash action. Opponents of lawful whoring claim it gives a bad image to gambling operations, which are now trying to attract families a la successful resorts with other types of attractions. Our second development speaks of successful attractions: Nevada's most famous and biggest legal brothel, Mustang Ranch, is going public. Boasting 102 rooms of "independent contractors" whose six-month revenue yield nears $2.5 million, Ranch owners are offering $23.3 million of stock to Wall Street investors. The Reno-area brothel's required statement of risk to stockholders warns of possible monetary damages from sexually-transmitted-disease lawsuits, but the CDC study seems to nullify that risk. Stock bearers face a greater risk from busybodies trying to fix something that ain't broke.

Porn Prosecutor Faces Fund Probe

The U.S. Justice Department is investigating its top pornography prosecutor for alleged misuse of funds. H. Robert Showers, who helms Meese-inspired assaults on porn, faces charges that the smut slayer used tax dollars to pay for trips to meetings of a Fundamental Christian group to which he belongs in his native Raleigh, North Carolina, and to other cities for similar religious functions. The trips did not appear to be official business, although Showers listed them as such. If developments in the case prohibit Showers from continuing the censorship campaign, at least he has carried on the Reagan-Meese legacy of make-believe ethics based on personal assumptions of righteousness. Prior to 1980, the Constitution and written laws served as the guidelines for public servants' behavior.

Mass Killer's Wife Rips Off Strange Pieces

Sonia Sutcliffe's parents laid down the law when they found out their live-in daughter was dating other men behind her husband's back. Friends say it would shatter the poor fellow if he heard of his wife's infidelity. All this sounds like married life as usual, except that Sonia's hubby is none other than Peter Sutcliffe, the Yorkshire Ripper. Though Sonia's murderous mate brutally ripped apart 13 women in a spree that terrorized England, she remains married to him and visits Peter in his permanent residence at a prison for the criminally insane. Her adulterous yearnings will not be tolerated, especially by Sonia's 63-year-old mother, a strictly religious woman who kicked her daughter out of her Bradford, England, home. The Ripper may have an unhealthy attitude toward some women, but it's a good bet you won't hear him tell mother-in-law jokes.

Slit Surgeon Examined for Pussy-Improvement Technique

A Dayton, Ohio, gynecologist is being investigated for performing surgical techniques to enhance women's sexual responsiveness without their knowledge. Dr. James Burt of

St. Elizabeth Medical Center has been accused of this unsolicited snatch surgery by the Ohio State Medical Board, which has eyed the doctor for some time. Case-control officer for the board, Lauren Lubow, says Burt was conducting several variations of a surgical technique he devised himself. In fact,

Burt is possibly the only doctor performing these operations on women, according to Lubow, who refuses to discuss the details of Burt's handiwork. Female HUSTLER readers yearning to benefit from the "Burt Method" will have to wait for further details before requesting the procedure by name.

Papal Policies Breed Abortion

The Alan Guttmacher Institute reports that Roman Catholic women are much more prolific than Protestant females in at least one activity—getting abortions. The study contends that disaffiliated Catholics have a 30% higher abortion rate than non-Catholic sisters, but the institute maintains that it isn't because Catholic girls necessarily genuflect on more cock than Protestant babes. Rather, the report blames papal doctrine that prohibits contraceptives, although the Vatican also decries abortion as a serious crime against God. The consequences of a no-contraceptive lifestyle obviously become more real after the inevitable result of letting old men in dresses make personal choices for us.

Woman Wants Baby, Has Lover Rape Daughter

A woman, no longer able to bear children, has pleaded guilty to helping her boyfriend rape her 14-year-old daughter in order to get the girl pregnant. The Syracuse, New York, woman's 31-year-old boyfriend also pleaded guilty to the 1986 rape, which authorities discovered only after the victim gave birth to a boy. According to an affidavit, the unidentified 38-year-old woman watched as the rape occurred.

EROTIC ENTERTAINMENT

With more than a thousand hard-core movies being released each year for the home audience, viewers, increasingly confronted by seductive advertising and slick packaging, are often at a loss when it comes to selecting an X-rated tape worth watching. HUSTLER is committed to serious, no-bullshit criticism designed to accurately inform readers of XXX-cinema offerings, and to spur the adult-entertainment industry to better productions. Despite their drastic decline, there will always be adult theaters, and we'd never leave a film buff in the lurch: If a review says a production was shot on film, it's probably playing on a big screen somewhere—all you have to do is find it.

It's Only the Best for the likes of Janey Robbins and Jamie Gillis.

ONLY THE BEST OF ORAL

Shot on Film and Video.

Three-Quarters Erect. Starring Elle Rio, Tom Byron, Jon Martin, Sharon Mitchell, John Leslie, Susan Hart, John Holmes, Tamara Longley, Joey Silvera, Janey Robbins, Jamie Gillis, Kari Foxx, Nikki Charm, Buck Adams, Alicia Monet, Lisa DeLeeuw, William Margold, Colleen Brennan, Taija Rae, Nina Hartley, Patti Cakes, Ron Jeremy, Teresa Orlowski, Amber Lynn, Dick Rambone and Collette Marin. Videocassette by Cal Vista.

Only the Best of Oral is mistitled. There's no more cocksucking or pussy eating here than you'll find in any of thousands of other sex scenes. In fact, only two of Oral's 14 encounters are exclusively oral. The rest include oral sex as a preliminary to fucking. But what fucking! The tape opens with a scorcher: Tom Byron and Jon Martin's cocks simultaneously penetrate Elle Rio's mouth, then her pussy. Finally, Byron butt-fucks her while her head's bobbing on Martin's dick. Little Nikki Charm sucks and tongues Buck Adams's big boinker, then lies back while he pumps her tight, tight pussy and coats her torso and face with the most spectacular splat of cum he's ever delivered. The segment from Sexual Power is shot from an angle that enables us to imagine ourselves in Tom Byron's place, thus reaping all the fantasy blowjob benefits of Alicia

Monet, cock in mouth, gazing into our eyes. Though the effect is not the same for her subsequent tonguing of Byron's asshole, Monet's endeavor is much appreciated anyway. Best Of's lack of specialization is bound to disappoint oralists, but everyone else can just forget the title and enjoy themselves. —John Cooper

LET ME TELL YA 'BOUT FAT CHICKS II

Shot on Video.

Three-Quarters Erect. Directed by Loretta Sterling; starring Layla LaShell, Lotta Love, Claessa Hamilton, Randy Cochran, Dennis Johnson, Ray Victory and Johnny Cole. Videocassette by 4-Play Video.

Fat women come in all shapes and sizes, except svelte, petite and any of those forms generally accepted as worth a fuck. And though few sexual speculators are so desperate as to invest their own genitals in the human sow-belly meat market, there's nothing to be lost, beyond lunch, by taking a wide-eyed look at the massive slabs of female flab in Let Me Tell Ya 'Bout Fat Chicks II. A quartet of Afro-American big-bone bucks, enured to porcine prurience by a lifelong diet of pickled pigs feet and deep-fried pork rinds, is assigned the task of impaling these blubber-encased cunts. Though production qualities, particularly sound, are as abominable as the physiques on these squealing pig women, Fat II delivers a suetload of black-on-white-trash mega-calorie carnality. These orally fixated freaks of hunger run amok really put the slob in slobber—everything they've ever put into their mouths, aside from black penises, has turned to lard. Now, thanks to this video, any guy with a few bucks can see if that makes him hard.

ANGEL PUSS

Shot on Video.

Joey Silvera puts Renee Morgan through her paces.

soldiers, tanks, big guns and other accoutrements of war, and has whole-some-looking Shanna McCullough impersonating executed Dutch femme fatale Mata Hari. McCullough gets things underway by screwing Joey Silvera. Her second (and last) sex scene is with Megan Leigh and Viper, a standard sapphic triad briefly highlighted by Viper licking Shanna's anus. Billy Dee and Alicia Monet pork it out in a suds-filled bathtub, and Silvera winds up in a three-way with Monet and Viper. Her Snake-ness makes retard faces while spanking Monet, then licks and sucks Silvera's gooey wand after it's withdrawn spurting from Monet's box. The hottest scene comes early on: Megan Leigh gives Mike Horner a great blowjob, then squeals joyfully as he plugs her snatch. With only five sex scenes there's much time out for acting and plot. Though no one's around who'd know, Mata Hari's sex life was undoubtedly a lot different from what's portrayed here—and it was probably a lot better.

—J. C.

The distaff cast of Angel Puss tell the hole story.

If real hospitals were like porn-film hospitals, there'd be a waiting list to get in. Who would stay home when cute little candy strippers like Renee Morgan can be talked into administering a therapeutic blowjob? Who wouldn't give himself over to an institution with a dedicated head nurse like Shanna McCullough, who can't stop herself from succoring a patient whose major misery is blueballs? If Angel Puss is any indication, perv porn director Alex DeRenzy would make a wonderful hospital administrator. Joey Silvera is the patient suffering from severe poison oak of the hands whose dick gets the tonsil treatment from Renee, Shanna and, finally, the Little Angel of St. Mary's (Brandi Wine), who materializes to help him "with those gosh-darn swollen testicles." During and in between these encounters we're treated to fantasies of Tom Byron and Peter North servicing a parochial passion princess (Kendal Marx) and other earlier DeRenzy heroines; Morgan being dyked by lesbo tormentors Marx, Wine and Jennifer Hall; and a hilarious double-team of McCullough by Byron and North that Silvera tries to horn in on. Angel Puss has all the elements we've come to expect from DeRenzy: pretty girls, excellent photography, wicked humor and sizzling sex. Make this the next sexvid you view. Doctor's orders.

TWENTYSOMETHING EPISODE 2, "The Art Lovers"

Shot on Video.

One-Quarter Erect. Directed by Paul Thomas; starring Ona Zee, Alicia Monet, Siobhan Hunter, Jerry Butler and Ron Jeremy. Videocassette by Vivid Video.

"The essence of art is pain," pronounces the pained Jerry Butler character of twentysomething episode 2, "The Art Lovers," his face constricted in the grimace of thwarted self-expression generally associated with a severely constipated man. The essence of "The Art Lovers" is also pain, particularly to the aggrieved and befuddled sap who may have rented—or, even more hurtfully, bought—this tape expecting an inducement to orgasm. The would-be wanker's erotic self-expression is thwarted at every expected twist and predictable turn of twentysomething 2's tortuous and torturous plot line. The desperate dick-handler must suffer an unendurable duration of the insufferable Ona Zee and Ron Jeremy mugging to one another and the camera, then briefly fucking. One consolation to the inconsolably limp-dicked viewer: as long as Zee and Jeremy are fucking one another, they can't be fucking anyone else. Unfortunately, the dysphoric duo dick some other scumsters too, but not before Paul Thomas makes his pud-curdling cameo appearances. Episode 2 might better have been titled "More of the Lame."

SAMANTHA, I LOVE YOU

Shot on Video.

Half Erect. Starring Samantha Strong, Tajja Rae, Nina De Ponca, Sparkle Densmore, Lois Ayres, Shone Taylor, Peter North, Jose Duval, Francois Papillon, Herschel Savage and Johnny Nineteen. Videocassette by Western Visuals.

This compilation tape features beautifully visaged Samantha Strong and her storm-door thighs in all their glory. In eight scenes Samantha takes on a variety of studs (Francois Papillon, Peter North, Herschel Savage), studettes (Tajja Rae, Sparkle Densmore) and Shone Taylor and Jose Duval—who fall somewhere in between. Interestingly, the hottest encounter is between Sam and the usually placid Taylor, who seems to have acquired an extra Y-chromosome. The aggressiveness of his Mr. Hyde side sits well with Samantha, who writhes and twists in ecstasy as Taylor thrusts powerfully and noisily into her mouth and cunt, finally letting loose a spurt of jizz worthy of the occasion. Since the footage is mostly lifted from Satin Angels and Jewels of the Nite (which were shot at the same time), there's an unfortunate similarity to the look and tone of the tape. Still, there's a generous amount of heat and some rewarding views of the Strong box, not to mention the obvious: an opportunity to see Samantha, nonstop, unencumbered by the demands of plot, dialogue and characterization.

ing the piano at the recent Adult Video Association awards dinner, the multit talented LeMay has recently displayed her carnal abilities in such fuck flicks as The First of April, The Girls of the B.L.O., The Pink Baroness and Suzie Creamcheeze (in which she plays the appetizing title role). LeMay also appears opposite super-slut Erica Boyer in the soon-to-be-released first volume of the HUSTLER Hard X-rated video series. Keep your eyes on this girl, discriminating pervs.

STREETWALKER NEWS UPDATE

Porn star turned reputed prostitute Cara Lott (seen here in a nutritious moment from Frisky Business) has been making a few headlines recently. Seems her name has been linked to a pair of Orange County judges who are now under secret investigation for allegedly offering hookers favorable court treatment in exchange for—yes, you guessed it—sex. Of course, it's hard to say just how "secret" the investigation of Harbor Municipal Court Judges Brian Carter and Calvin Schmidt can be, since the story has gone out over UPI. At any rate, Judge Schmidt is accused of having reduced a jail sentence for our old pal Cara, who was up on prostitution charges. Supposedly, all she had to do in return was demonstrate a bit of the technique that made her notorious in sleaze-cinema circles. Cara Lott may not be making many films these days, but it's nice to know that fame still has its perks.

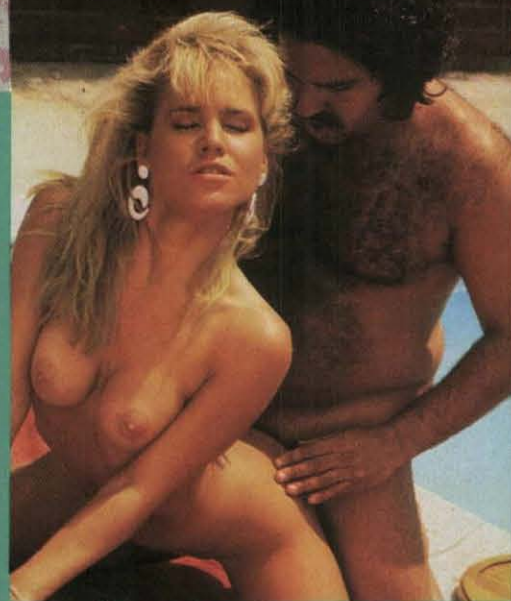

NOTHING BUT GIRLS, GIRLS, GIRLS

Shot on Video.

Half Erect. Directed by Nicholas Pera, starring Laurel Canyon, Aja, Ebony Ayes, Tawny Downs, Dana Lynn, Samantha Strong, Nina De Ponca and Ron Jeremy. Videocassette by Cinderella Home Video.

Ron Jeremy is the most gruesome girl yet to disgrace any medium of pornography. Though presumably undergoing gender-realignment surgery before appearing in Nothing but Girls, Girls, Girls as an aged, bloated, hirsute, yammering Hasidic woman, Ron retained the monstrous Hebrew National Jeremy schlong and penchant for spear-tonguing succulent young snatch, but wastes neither of these nominally male traits upon nubile and newly titted Laurel Canyon. Canyon, whose operation for mammary enhancement was visually far more successful than Jeremy's (assumed) feminization, is the pivotal slit of Girls, Girls, Girls, lending cunt, face and latex dong to four of the five titty-to-titty, clitty-to-clitty encounters that follow Canyon's sapphism with Dame Jeremy. Laurel laps Aja's labes, then lunges in with a strap-on cock; Ebony Ayes shares an electrically powered prong with Tawny Downs; Canyon snugly packs a long, fake dong into Dana Lynn's slot, putting tongue to clitoris to double the fun; Samantha "Tubby" Strong takes a quick test spin of a double-header with Canyon; Laurel and a vibrator give a half-minute buzz to the Florence Griffith-Joyner of porn, Nina De Ponca. Rather than an extra girl (Jeremy), the producers of Girls, Girls, Girls should have provided more batteries.

SINGLE GIRL MASTURBATION: A LINGERIE FANTASY VOLUME 1

Shot on Video.

One-Quarter Erect. Directed by Anna-Marie Monet; starring Bionca, Malibu Rose, Donna Hart, Jackie Lenz, Alicia Simms, Belinda and Fallon. Videocassette by Eye Shadow Productions.

Some onanists, endowed with particularly complex neuroses, can only masturbate to climax in the security of near-perfect privacy. Naturally, these seclusive strokers require an image, some sort of visual stimulus, to achieve defilement, but ordinary porn is too much for them: big-dick dudes pricking enticing doxies, sometimes two or three at once, threesomes, fourways, orgies. How, the disturbed recluse of raunch wonders, can anyone expect me to beat off with such a crowd around all the time? Relax, hermit the perv, Single Girl Masturbation: A Lingerie Fantasy Volume 1 just may be a dose of salvation, and certainly will not do any greater harm than a session on the analyst's couch. Each in an elaborate lingerie ensemble, a steady succession of chippies, seven in all, addresses the isolated viewer directly through the cathode rays, chatting personally and parting their pussy lips while all alone with him only. Fallon even goes so far as to gush a G-spot goop for the solitary stud. Fetishists aside, Lingerie Fantasy Volume 1 may be a bit of a panty waste.

THE BRAZILIAN CONNECTION

Shot on Video.

Three-Quarters Erect. Directed by Justin Stor; starring Ona Zee, Herschel Savage, Bunny Bleu, Buffy Davis, Keisha, Tony Montana, Blondi, Sheena Horne, Tom Byron, Marc Wallace, Rick Savage. Videocassette by Caballero Home Video.

With a bone-building ten sex scenes, including four ass-fucks (two of which are sandwiches), The Brazilian Connection delivers the goods straight to the groin. A reasonable story and dialogue has even been thrown in as a bonus, although Ona Zee's acting makes English look like her second language. The plot is about two rival rich bitches out to scam a multimillionaire out of his cash with gash. And what gash it is, starting with a dynamite double-hole plugging of Buffy Davis, with Tom Byron and Rick Savage laying the logs to her. Once is not enough for buxom Buffy, who returns later in an equally steamy stool-stuffing with Savage, while the ever-cute Bunny Bleu experiences the joys of anal erotica with a hot-rodded Marc Wallace. Blondi phones in her two humps with perennial paramour Tony Montana, but it's Sheena Horne-of-plenty who keeps the crotch fires burning in her three dickings, including a creamy mug-splat by Herschel Savage. Things go out with a bang as well: In the orgy that ends the film, the less-than-delectable Ona Zee gets a decent puss 'n' pooper pumping. The opening credits are attractive, as is the non-insistent music, and with only a minor glitch or two this compilation is technically impressive. For both quantity and quality, Brazilian is definitely one Connection worth making.

STATE OF THE ART IN BIOTECHNOLOGY

AS SEEN ON THE BBC'S
TOMORROW'S WORLD

GROW ANY PLANT PYRAPONIMETRICALLY

In the laboratory of a major university, Jeffery DeMarco, president and founder of Pyraponic Industries, developed the discrete base concept. This concept and methodology used is called GROWING PLANTS PYRAPONIMETRICALLY. This makes the Phototron the only closed system in the world. To employ the discrete base concept, at least two soil samples must be removed from the base of the Phototron; the first on DAY 45 and the second on DAY 90 of plant growth. A soil analysis for nutrient levels is then performed at Pyraponic Laboratories to develop a standard pattern for the depletion ratio of your plants in your Phototron. There is no leaching of nutrients, because the closed base has no drainage. Chemical levels in your soil can then be maintained by Pyraponic Laboratories through an updated, computer controlled, nutrient supply sent to you after each soil analysis. Wind velocity, carbon dioxide saturation, relative humidity, and temperature are controlled by the design of the Phototron. Vertical lights six inches apart mean that no plant is further than three inches from any three different light sources. Light reflecting from all interior panels super-saturates every leaf top and bottom. Plants do not need to stretch toward their light source, which will reduce the distance between budding and fruiting locations.

ANGEL'S BACK!

Shot on Video.

Half Erect. Directed by Richard Mailer; starring Angel, Nina Hartley, Joey Silvera, Peter North, Renee Morgan, Isabell Rovetti, Mike Horner, Jon Martin, Damien Cashmere and Sasha Gabor. Videocassette by Intropics.

The face that launched a thousand loads has returned, and it would be nice to report that Angel has come back to smut with an exciting and renewed sense of carnal cravings. Nope, it's the same old Angel. Her lethargy for lust is evident again, although she's certainly game for appearing in three of the film's six scenes, when a lot of porn stars might've opted for the complimentary one or two humps. Her pussy plows with Peter North and Joey Silvera are blase, ditto her final tonsil pricking and tit-fuck with Sasha Gabor, where she plays a concubine to his sultan. The threadbare plot has Mike Horner and Jon Martin as porn writers in search of whatever happened to Angel, but the way they tear into Nina Hartley in the film's hottest scene, why bother? The production is a bit cheesy, meaning average by porn standards, and we're treated to endless shots of Angel cruising L.A. in a Mercedes. Still, she looks as ravishing as ever, and the sight of a woman as beautiful as her getting boned for the camera is the big turn-on. However, with other gorgeous gash, such as Aja, on the rise, who can combine looks with passion, Angel's in danger of falling off the prettiest-poon pedestal. All in all, Angel's Back, but she's still boring.

A WOMAN'S TOUCH

Shot on Video.

One-Quarter Erect. Starring Sharon Mitchell, Kathleen Jentry, Sheena Horne, Sheri St. Clair, Erica Boyer, Siobhan Hunter, Buffy Davis, Trinity Loren, Aja and Tami White. Videocassette by Zane Entertainment Group.

To paraphrase Bogart in Casablanca, of all the quim flicks in the world, why would you want to whack off to this one? A loop group as lame as this one comes along just once in a lifetime, and for the solo-stroking set, thank goodness. Oh, there's some prime poon being petted and probed here, but almost every scene captures the ladies at their worst. The only exception is a searing snatch slurp and box bang in which both of Erica Boyer's holes are stuffed simultaneously, sending the vixen into an orgasmic fury. It's the only labia lunching with lusting in it, as the rest of the tape is filled with snooze-inducing cooze. Even the indefatigable Sharon Mitchell is shown at her most lethargic here, chewing the pubes and chomping the clits of Kathleen Jentry and Siobhan Hunter in unmemorable scenes. The beautiful Aja gives it her best effort, but her scene with a girl whose face would inspire celibacy misses by a mile. Simply put, there really ain't a boner in the bunch. Atrociously narrated by a Dick Nixon soundalike, the editing values are below porn's own poor standards. Horrible transitions, piss-poor opticals and tin-can sound make this Woman's Touch unworthy of a ten-foot pole.

—S. L.

Yes, Angel's Back, and it's like she never left.

NEW TWISTS TO AIDS TESTING

by Norman T. Bristol

With a spring in his step and a smile on his face, Jeremy strode the sidewalk leading away from his local anonymous AIDS-testing center. Clenched tightly in his fist was the clean-as-a-whistle result he'd waited two weeks of sleepless nights to see. A wave of relief swept his mind, and for a brief moment the fear that had plagued him for several months was magically erased.

But, like the afternoon sun illuminating the certificate in his hand, a light clicked on within Jeremy's head, shedding painful reality on the event of the day.

Sure, the young man thought to himself, I've tested negative today, but I could be exposed tonight. For months I've taken precautions and had only the safest sex. But how can I be 100% sure of the safety of this so-called "safe sex"?

His sense of security and high hopes dissipating, Jeremy began to feel that his initial elation—not to mention the 50 bucks he shelled out for the test itself—were for naught. Would he have to endure another three to six months of anxiety, and abstinence, for the results of a follow-up test?

Jeremy's frustrations are similar to those of many who are concerned about AIDS and the mysteries that surround it. As medical researchers look to unravel the disease, the general public searches for some clarity, especially with regard to exposure and testing.

Fortunately, some degree of peace of mind may be in sight. Researchers at the City of Hope Medical Center in Los Angeles have developed a new examination that would allow detection of the virus only a few days after exposure. These rapid results come from a new testing technique that features greater sensitivity.

Consider the factors of both by first looking at the characteristics of the methods currently available:

One of today's standard tests, known as ELISA, detects AIDS proteins or host-produced antibodies. Following initial exposure, these antibodies can take anywhere from a few weeks to several months to develop. This incubation period must elapse before testing occurs in order for an accurate result to be shown.

If an individual tests positive with ELISA, a backup test known as the Western Blot is implemented. In the Western Blot, protein fragments from blood samples are separated by the size and electrical charge on a gelatinlike slab. They are then blotted to a cellulose paper, where special probes are used to detect fragments of the AIDS protein.

Enter the City of Hope findings developed by R. Bruce Wallace and John J. Rossi of the Beckman Research Institute. Their new method is derived from the growing body of knowledge in the field of molecular genetics. It incorporates an amplification process of DNA and RNA, the genetic components of all organic life-forms.

Only two milliliters of blood (about 1½ of a teaspoonful) are required for the test. One section of the virus's genetic information (RNA) is extracted from the sample. In samples that contain the AIDS virus, the RNA is used as a base to create DNA when a variety of enzymes and molecules is introduced. This procedure primes the reaction.

The AIDS DNA strands can then be reproduced in the form of RNA half-strands built from the radioactively labeled RNA units, which are easily detected. The increased sensitivity of this final amplification step makes a "false positive" result unlikely, if not impossible.

According to Rossi, this method of detecting genetic material is about one million times more sensitive than conventional DNA and RNA testing. "Without using the techniques we are developing," Rossi contends, "there is at this point no other way to accurately and consistently detect AIDS genes or proteins, even with a full-blown case of AIDS."

Wallace and Rossi say their techniques have the potential to augment or completely replace the ELISA and Western Blot testing. "Western Blots are often indeterminate," according to Rossi, "and it's also possible that the virus might sometimes exist in a latent genetic state during which very little protein is produced.

EXPERIMENTAL AIDS VACCINES

by Larry Wichman

In March 1987, French immunologist Daniel Zagury stunned the medical world by announcing that he had inoculated himself and 11 other volunteers with an experimental AIDS vaccine. It was the first time any human had ever attempted to achieve immunization against the AIDS virus through vaccination.

In some circles, Zagury's self-inoculation was viewed as foolhardy, if not premature. There was no telling what side effects the untried vaccine might have on the researcher. Plus, since the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) frequently mutates, thus enabling it to outwit the immune system, virologists were still arguing over whether an effective AIDS vaccine could even be produced.

Then, in the April 21, 1988, issue of Nature magazine, Zagury published the startling findings from his year-long study: After 13 months, during which time he received a series of three additional booster shots, he had achieved an immunity to no less than three different strains of HIV!

"Our results show for the first time that an immune state against HIV can be obtained in man," Zagury wrote. The Frenchman had achieved the best immune response to the virus ever recorded. In fact, when Dr. Robert Gallo, the leading virologist in AIDS research at the National Institutes of Health (and coauthor of the report), presented the findings to the National Academy of Sciences, he went so far as to suggest that Zagury's work may point the way to the first practical vaccine against AIDS.

The development of a prototype vaccine for HIV was no minor accomplishment. The AIDS virus is very elusive. It has the ability to mutate at an alarming rate within the infected individual. This creates havoc with the body's immune system and makes AIDS almost impossible to immunize against.

Normally, the immune system recognizes the AIDS virus from the chemical markers on its outer surface. Once detected, the body then moves in to destroy it. Vaccines are designed to alert the body's immune system to a potential intruder by exposing it to a disabled virus or to a portion of the virus's surface. This creates a small-scale infection, which in turn enables the immune system to generate antibodies to the virus, thus protecting it against any future infection.

Yet, the problem HIV poses is that when it mutates, the combination of the chemical markers changes, which allows it to escape antibody detection. Thus, a vaccine which would create antibodies against one strain of AIDS might prove completely ineffective against another—meaning that to be effective, a vaccine must be able to block the infection completely before the virus has a chance to mutate.

In this regard, the vaccine Zagury used looks very promising. What he did was splice a marker shared by most AIDS strains onto the harmless cowpox virus, which is used for the smallpox vaccine. Thus, he was able to create antibodies against HIV without actually exposing himself to the AIDS virus.

The procedure was not without risk, however. Although Zagury was in no danger of contracting AIDS from the serum, the toxicity level of the vaccine was still unknown. In fact, one of the primary purposes of the initial study was to determine how much vaccine the body could absorb in relation to the amount that was needed to generate an effective immune response.

BALLING BY BODY TYPES

I like a real physical kind of fucking and foreplay," Jim McMahon, a massive Venice, California, body-builder is saying, "and last Friday, I picked up this little doll. Like in the song, 'five foot two, eyes of blue,' around 100 pounds, really slender and small, with tiny bones. Usually I go for pretty big girls—I'm six feet, 210 pounds—but Laura was there, and she wanted me. I bring her up to my place; things are moving along—but bam, I strike out. What happened was, we're kissing, and I'm ripping off her clothes, and I started sucking her little titties. I'm getting into it, and she says, 'Stop it. You're hurting me.' I figure her nipples are supersensitive. No big deal. I hoist her off the couch and carry her to bed. I'm sticking myself in her, and she starts complaining again: 'You're hurting me. I'm not ready.' From then on, everything I did hurt her. I just quit and told her to beat it. It was too bad. She looked terrific and so totally different from the girls I meet down at the gym. I knew it'd be a whole different experience. I just didn't know it would be a bad one."

McMahon didn't have to wash out with Laura. If he had understood that this woman's petite and delicate body meant she had to be treated differently—physically and psychologically—from the full-bodied, muscular women he was used to bedding, he might have succeeded in romping pleasurably in the hay with her. And by understanding the various types of bodies, you'll not only get more women to share your bed; you'll also increase your pleasure—and hers.

A woman's body type reveals more than how much she eats or if her Holiday Spa Health Club membership is paid up. In fact, each of the basic body types has its own unique needs and motivations, on both physical and emotional levels, according to body-type researchers. Just as McMahon's rugged body reflects his aggressive, hard-charging personality, so Laura's frail frame reveals her sensitive and gentle nature. Because he failed to grasp that, McMahon also failed to bring the lady successfully to bed.

The form of your or any body is largely a function of heredity, of your parents and their parents. "Most experts," says Dr. Bruce Vaughan, a behavioral psychologist and author of Body Talk, "believe you were born into a particular category through genetics." That's the cause. The effects, the results, are powerful. "Body type is important," stresses psychologist Alexander Lowen, "because it is an expression of the personality."

Every body, believe Lowen and a growing number of psychologists, says a great deal about the underlying personality of the person inside. Called somatotyping—or body typing—this theory, explains author Vaughan, "deals with the determination of basic general categories of personality traits and patterns in relation to the general appearance of physical body structure."

"With body typing, you get the information you need about another person by just eyeballing them,"

"Look on the bright side, dear—at least she's home at a decent hour!"

says a Los Angeles psychologist and sales trainer. "One look, and you know a lot about what makes them tick. Spend a day studying body types, and if you're a salesperson, there's no way you won't earn money." The same principles apply to bedding the ladies who catch your eye.

The first step toward using body types to improve bedtime batting averages is to understand the basic types. No two bodies may be alike, but it's the similarities that matter. Stripped down to essentials, there are five basic body types: 1. endomorph: roly-poly, the Santa Claus look; 2. mesoendomorph: stout; 3. mesomorph: well proportioned, body-beautiful; 4. mesoectomorph: slender; 5. ectomorph: skinny.

Physically, there's little in common between a slender high-fashion model, a female weightlifter and a lady heavyweight. But the differences extend beyond the exterior. These ladies, say body-type theorists, are also different in every other way.

Take an endomorphic, heavyweight lady. This type is hard to mistake for another category. She will "usually have larger hips than shoulders, short or no neck to speak of, round head, small hands and feet," offers Vaughan. Her physique, obviously, is not designed for strenuous physical exertion—"Activity often leaves them breathless," Vaughan notes—and as a result, endos typically are homebodies. But there is good news for men who are drawn to this body type: Endomorphs "love people," says Vaughan, "and their love of life is greater than that of all the others. They are happy, cheerful people, full of enthusiasm." When it comes down to possessiveness, incidentally, endos are one of the least jealous of all body types. A blubbery endo girl may not mind sharing you with other women... particularly if she also has the right to play around.

To bed an endomorphic lady, "Use a lot of small talk and be folksy with them before you get down to business," Vaughan advises. Endomorphs, physically and emotionally expansive people, are unconcerned with the clock. And never turn a bedtime romp into an endurance contest. That'll wear out your endomorphic partner, who by nature wants to please you. An endomorph's basic motivation is to win approval.

Mesoendomorphs, by contrast, are "heavysset, stout-looking people with strong, thick chests and broad shoulders that are wider than the hips," observes Vaughan. Theirs is a good solid physique, and accordingly, notes body-type expert John Shirley,

"their theme song is, 'Don't Fence Me In.' " Freedom lovers, mesoendomorphs are energetic go-getters who call their own shots. "Many politicians and world leaders belong to this category," says Vaughan, "because the stouts make things happen. They draw compassion, generosity and impulsiveness from the endo personality and their drive from the meso personality. They are the fun-loving, freedom-seeking, happy-go-lucky doers and talkers of the world."

This type's root motivation is to win recognition. A little praise goes a long way toward greasing the path to the bedroom with a mesoendomorph. They're also good at communicating what they want; if a mesoendo lady wants you, she won't be shy about her intentions. Nor will she require much coaxing. Mesoendos "are doers and waste little time in starting something," Vaughan advises. But be sure to pay heed to what she says. Mesoendos like getting their own way, in romance and sex as well as everywhere else.

Mesomorphs are the world's bodybuilders and centerfold pinups. Small-waisted, with firm, square shoulders, they're competitive, dominant, self-centered, aggressive and athletic—remember that if you get one to bed. Power is a meso's creed. Mesomorphs do not waste time, ever. They get down to business in bed without a lot of preliminaries. But getting a body-beautiful mesomorphic lady to bed is no easy feat. These are not people to trifle with. "They cannot stand to lose, and if they should, a strong tendency to become vindictive is common to most mesomorphs," says Vaughan. Don't turn climbing into the sack into a competition if your target is a meso. If you do, you will lose. "Never confront this type. One should always flow with them," Vaughan stresses.

With the mesomorph lady, be straightforward but nonconfrontational. Communicate your desires, and let her take over. If the impulse hits her, don't be surprised if she picks you up and carries you to bed. On the other hand, don't be shocked if she belts you in the chops and stalks away. There's no calling the shots for a meso girl. She must be in charge to be happy.

Mesoectomorphs are linear and slenderly built—doctors, scientists and many actors, actresses and models fall into this category. They frequently are detail-minded, reserved and insecure. A drive for security is their root motivation. They "will not be open with you easily," says Vaughan, "but when they are, they will be open all the way." And that's the key to bedding a mesoecto. Mesoectos despise risks and are not trusting people. Of all the body types, they are hands down the most possessive when it comes to romance. Never flaunt your successes with other girls before a mesoecto. She'll get jealous, yes, but Struggling students Lenora and Kim played hooky from their junior-college class, opting for an afternoon at Peepers Peak. While leggy Lenora took in the view, closet-dyke Kimmie zeroed in on her favorite sight: Lenora's buns. Seizing her long-awaited opportunity, Kim made her move. Luckily, lust-bucket Lenora squirmed willingly when Kimmie shoved a finger up her twat, and quickly returned the favor. After a deep, wet kiss, clit-slicking expert Kim slipped a tongue south and lapped madly at her friend's quivering trim until Lenora glazed her partner's face with pure pudenda juice. The two students then got a lesson in multiple orgasms, mound-mounting each other's faces until a sopping 69 left the two cunts sucked dry. Needless to say, skipping class is now a regular part of the school day, but they'll at least earn Ph.Ds in nymphomania.

"If you really believe that you're sexy, you will be sexy. Tap into that sexual energy to create whatever fantasy you want."

For the past two months, Mike has been averaging 58 hours a week at work. One night, exhausted, he calls his wife Laura and says he's coming home early.

At the top of the landing, he sees a note taped to the front door. It's from Laura: "When you get inside, go to the bedroom, take off all your clothes, sit in the chair by the window and wait."

All right! he thinks, hurrying out of his jacket even before opening the door. He's just gotten his pants off and settled into the chair when an arm reaches around the corner and turns on the CD player. His pulse quickens. The lights mysteriously dim, and the room floods with the music.

Suddenly, out of the doorway steps his wife. She moves sensuously in time to the music, clothed in a black-satin bustier, a see-through skirt cut up to the waist on one side, fishnet stockings, garters, lace gloves and shiny black high heels. He is about to get up to touch her. She dances over to the chair and handcuffs him to the rungs. She takes off her clothes, bumping and grinding, running her hands over her breasts and slithering her stockings over his enlarged penis. He is going to explode.

He's seen only one other strip in his life, at a friend's bachelor party. This one outdoes anything he's ever imagined—his wife, dancing and stripping like a pro! Where did she learn all this?!

The scene is the Learning Annex, a school for adults that offers quickie courses on subjects ranging from desktop publishing to "Sexual Secrets of the Orient." Tonight's class, "How to Strip for Your Man," is offered in 15 cities across the country. Fifty-eight women, from 25 to 73 years old, have signed up for this session. Two extra classes were added to meet the heavy demand.

These women are paying money to learn something traditionally associated with shady-lady types in smoky, sleazy places of ill repute. It's about learning to be sexy. In case you haven't noticed, the name of the game lately for women of all ages is erotica.

Maybe women don't need to deny their femaleness to get an equal shot at jobs anymore. Maybe, in these cautious times when monogamy has pulled ahead of tag-team relationships in popularity polls, erotic exploration is the best way to keep home fires burning. Maybe women are feeling powerful in dozens of ways, and one of them is sharing the responsibility for keeping the sex hot.

Whatever reason, the evidence—from new couples videos to a boom in lingerie buying to the number of women who own vibrators, dildo harnesses and handcuffs—indicates that women are letting go of the "nice girls don't" myth.

Gio, a professional strip artist teaching tonight's class, covers everything from bumps and grinds to the various ways to remove jackets, gloves, garters, stockings and bras. During the three-hour class she urges everyone on: "To do a successful strip, convince yourself that you're terrific. If you really believe that you're sexy, you will be sexy. Tap into that sexual energy, and you'll be able to create whatever kind of fantasy you want—it's your show!"

Toward the end of the class gloves and bras are flying. Each woman is struggling in front of full-length mirrors to look like Kim Basinger while strutting across the floor on three-inch heels. Every one of them is planning to use what she's learned. And if brisk sales of Gio's how-to video after class are any indication, 58 men better get their dicks in shape.

"Women are ready to take control of their sexuality," claims Gio, a former industrial designer with a degree from New York's Pratt Institute. "Women used to be pressured into playing the 'I don't really like or want this sex stuff, but I'll do it for you' game. Now we know better. Women love everything about sex. They love to watch it, they love to do it, and they love to talk about it. Any woman who denies that is doing so because of a bad experience, a negative indoctrination or because of her own fears."

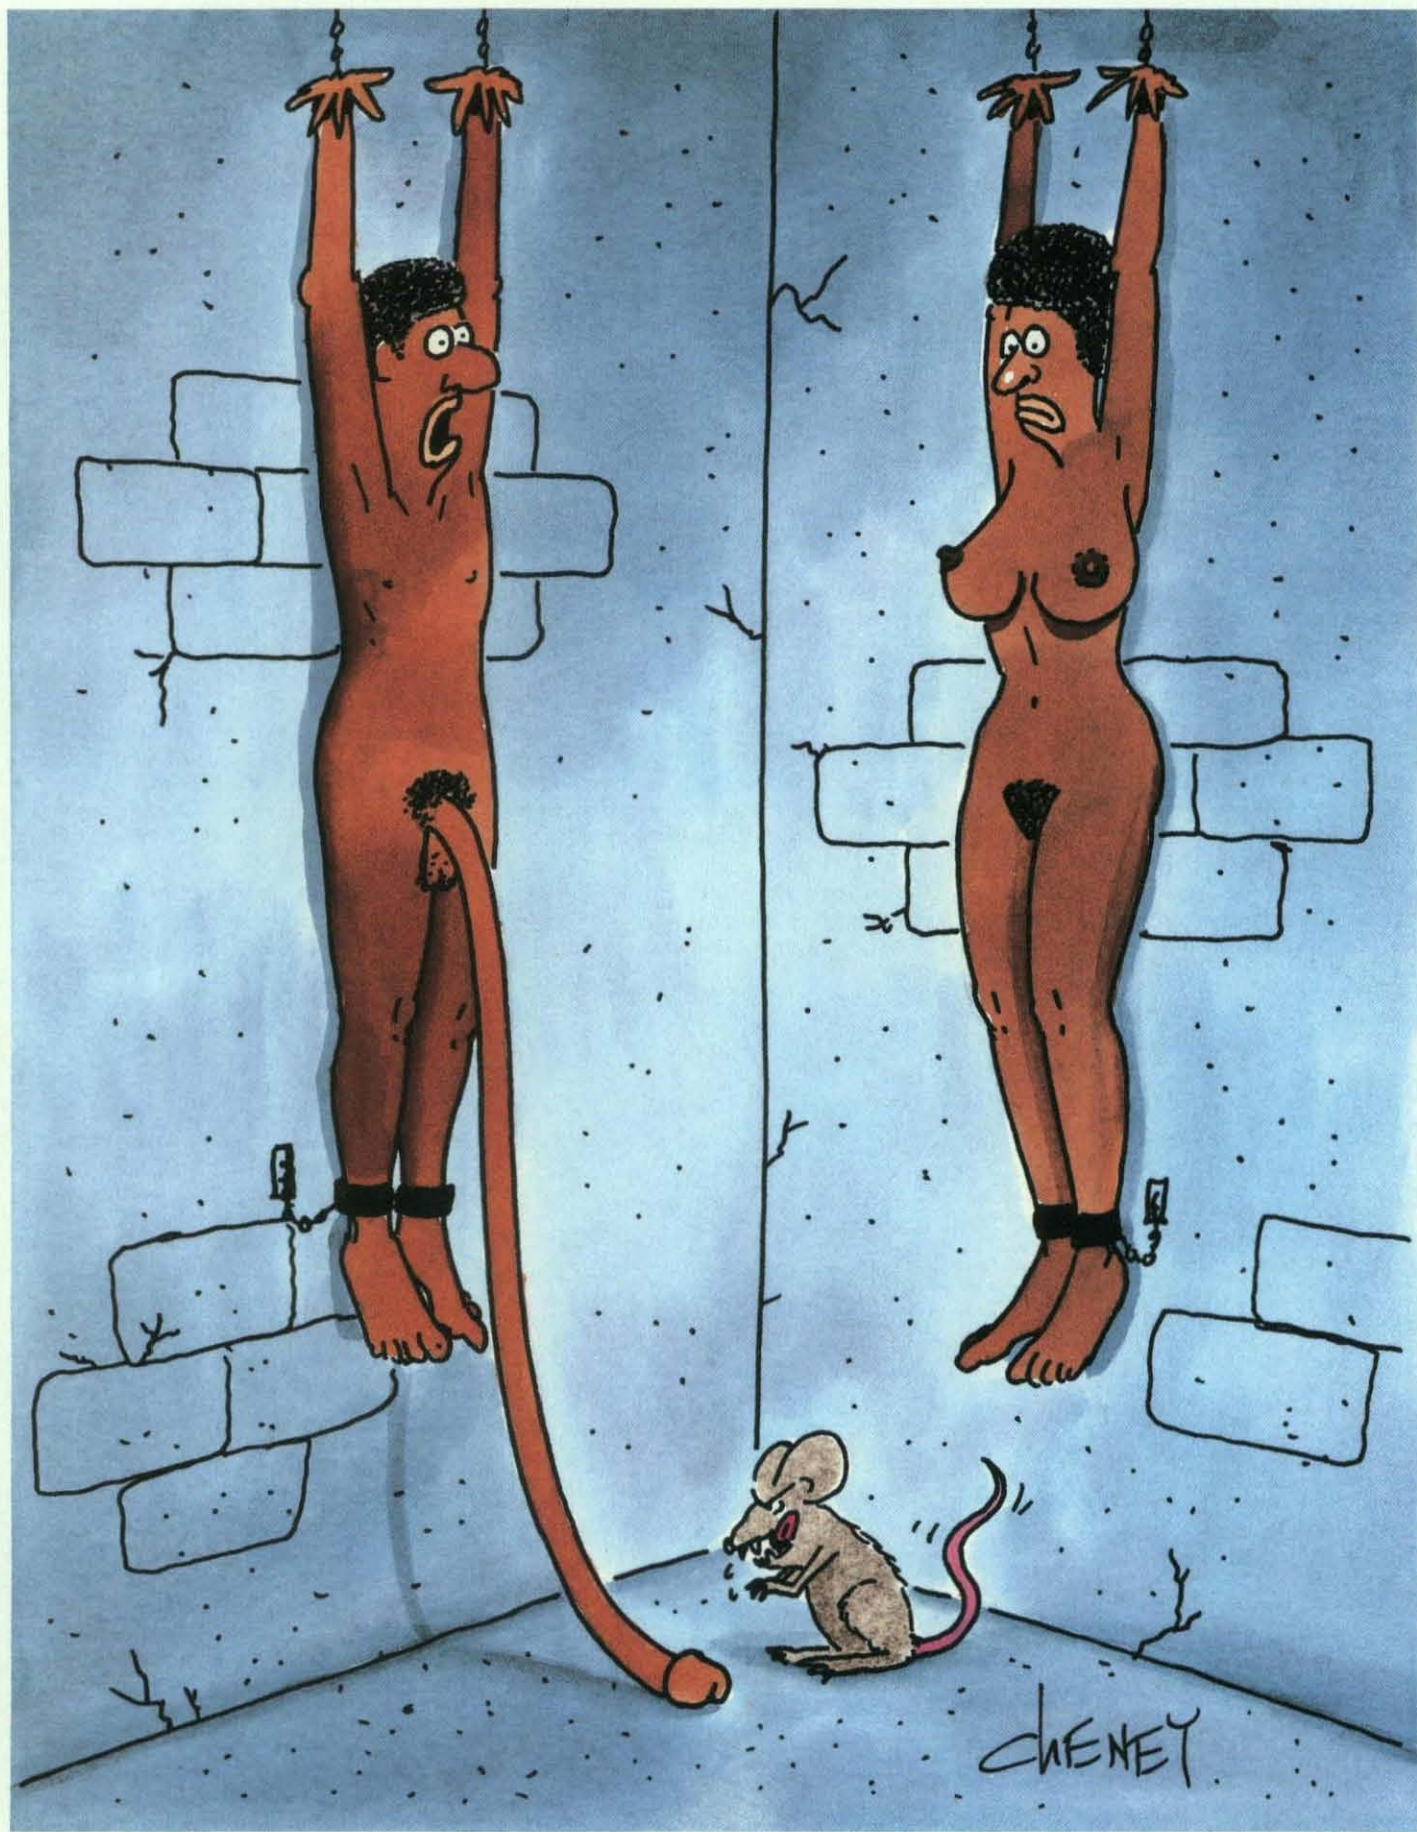

"Parents are finally beginning to give their children a different message about sex," effuses psychotherapist Judith Coan. "The old ideology that sex is bad and acting sexy is evil is not as prevalent." Coan, the director of Advanced Therapy Services in New York City, attributes the change to the freedom women now have to make their own decisions about every aspect of their lives. "They're deciding," she stresses, "that it's okay to express interest in being sexy, acting sexy and initiating sex. Women are finally looking at what makes them feel good."

Brown University now has a "feminist pornography journal." Women in Provo, Utah (home of the sexually frolicking Mormons), regularly meet for "smut parties." Playgirl, responding to a "deluge" of letters complaining about the removal of male nudity from the magazine's format, has restored the beloved "cock 'n' ass" photography that has made it a favorite among women for 15 years. A Long Island health-and-diet spa for women is the setting for occasional Thursday night "male entertainer" parties.

Even Ms., that tight-sphinctered arbiter of what's sexually correct for women, shows changes in respect to females and erotica. When the magazine ran a Calvin Klein ad for Obsession perfume showing a nearly naked couple, a number of letters from women protested the "exploitative advertising." Ms. answered the charge on the editorial page: "The ad represented a breakthrough in its [Calvin Klein's] alternative sexual stereotyping. Instead of a nonemotional man and an emotionally vulnerable woman, it's the man in this ad who is emotional and vulnerable. Now that readers have begun to untangle sex from violence and inequality, women are ready for a mutual and freely chosen sensuality of our own."

Ms. no longer shies away from sexy lingerie ads and has even printed a classified pitching the finest in X-rated videos.

"Women have obviously decided to see themselves as sexual beings," states New York City sex therapist Ellen Goldberg. "It's okay for women to sit at corporate bargaining tables in perfume and silks."

Silks are a telling indicator that women are exploring their sensual sides. In the past five years lingerie boutiques have sprung up everywhere. Dissatisfied with baggy cotton underpants and serviceable bras and increasingly put off by the black and red "prostitute" connotation of sexy lingerie, women are ripe for stores that indulge their needs for sumptuous, silken creations to wear under (and often sticking out from) their boardroom basics.

Alex Gardner is the manager of Saturday Night, a swank lingerie boutique in New York's Greenwich Village. She has watched sales climb from "just okay" in 1981 to "phenomenal" in 1988. She attributes the boom to "self-confidence and a clear feeling of 'I'm worth it.' More women today have the money to buy a $50 bustier. They like the feeling of sexiness it gives them. Women try on camisoles and wonder whether he'll like the blue one better or the white one. I say to them, 'Well, which one do you like better? If you feel great in it, you give off an air of confidence and self-satisfaction that's an aphrodisiac to a man.'"

Beverly Weinkauff, proprietor of Toujours, a San Francisco store specializing in French lingerie, has a clientele of women from 18 to 72. In the two years she's been in business, she's seen sales increase 50%. "Women used to feel they couldn't buy sensuous garments for themselves because of social taboos. . . . They'd wait for a man to buy it for them. Well, we've come a long way, baby!"

The fuck-movie industry is another area turned inside out by the voracious appetites of women for sex-related material. According to Adult Video News, a monthly magazine published in Philadelphia with 15,000 store-owner and 10,000 consumer subscribers, women or couples now account for 63% of porn rentals. Paul Fishbein, the mag's publisher, finds the results "not surprising, considering that the industry is gearing its product to specifically appeal to women and couples."

One company that has targeted couples as its market is Femme Productions, headed by Candida Royalle, a 35-year-old porn actress turned director/producer. Femme has produced four full-length top-of-the-line features—Femme, Urban Heat, Christine's Secret and Three Daughters.

Royalle's goal is to revolutionize the formula of mainstream porn. "When I look at characters like Maddie in Body Heat, I come away with the impression that women who are highly sexual are bad," she laments. "I want to restore the dignity of sexuality, the feeling that a high degree of sexual interest on the part of women is not only healthy but natural."

Restoring that dignity, a la Royalle, involves moving beyond the tried-and-tired cum-shots, pink-shots, the obligatory lesbian scene followed by the standard three-way (two women, one man), no foreplay or afterplay, endless fellatio, quickie intercourse and scenes of women submitting to male fantasies with no reciprocation.

"Porn," says Royalle, "has an unnecessary emphasis on genitalia and what pornographers call the money shots. It's overkill; it's embarrassing; it's shocking. A woman is depicted as a harlot, a slut or a prostitute." On the other hand, she says, "Erotica, which comes from the root word eros, is devoted to arousing sexual love and desire through artistic works of erotic quality. That's what I want my work to do."

As women get more and more into erotic films, the number of people tapping into their purchase power has increased dramatically. Edwin Durell and Sandra Winters' Every Woman Has a Fantasy won the adult-film industry's Couples Film of the Year award in 1986. The film is based on a lifelike situation: a group of married women meeting regularly to discuss—and act out—their sexual fantasies. Other couples films hot in the reality department are In Love by Chuck Vincent, which

HUSTLER's New Hard-Core Video Sets Sexvid Standards

What do you call a full-length adult feature with 14 attractive sex stars, scintillating sex scene after sizzling sex scene staged on elaborate sets with complex special effects? We call it Dreams in the Forbidden Zone, the all-new HUSTLER sex video that defines what adult movies should be.

HUSTLER recently tried to reach out to a wider adult audience with our soft-core Centerfold Series, but everyone from producer Peter Davy down to the lowliest jerkoffs in the mailroom felt our audience had been overlooked. Never one to accept less than the absolute best for his faithful following, Larry

Flynt commanded, "Let there be hard-core!" The result is a movie with a plausible plot and powerful passion that shows the kind of effort we've always hoped our highly regarded

Erotic Entertainment
section

would help establish in the adult-video industry.

In partnership with Davy's Pure Class Productions (that kind of sums it up, eh?), HUSTLER proudly lends its name to Dreams in the Forbidden Zone, about which Peter frankly states, "I want to win all the adult-video awards with this one."

What that takes, he continues, is making the effort: A look behind the scenes at the videotaping shows how complex that simple slogan can be. The story of a young woman's journey back to uninhibited sexuality from a personal sexual tragedy required an unprec-lights fill the jungle sky; and an entire orgy scene appears to literally float on the clouds.

During a lunch break over catered Chinese delights, even the stars seemed dazzled by the expense and complexity of the production. An observer moving about the soundstage, backstage and through makeup and dressing rooms would constantly note new faces, new costumes and the serious expressions of those charged with keeping everything moving. Time after time, some of the finest flesh in filmdom gathered about monitors for replays of sophisticated SFX and SEX, all of which came together under the skilled codirection of Davy and Jeanedented two full days (that's dawn to past midnight) of work on a huge set where one elaborate setup after another was built, and more stars than you'll see in two or three tapes together performed continuously before one of the largest crews (two cameras and sophisticated monitoring systems) ever hired for such a production.

Besides some Davy discoveries—hot and sassy Lynn LeMay and the nubile leading lady, Champagne, whose portrayal of a woman resistant to sexual urges but begging to have an orgasm sets a bone-inspiring sexual tension—Peter gathered such stars as Trinity Loren, Nina De Ponca, Brandy Alexander, Jade East, Shane Hunter, Viper, Peter North, Rick Daniels, Ray Victory, Tom Byron, Sasha Gabor, and negotiated a special cameo appearance by Erica Boyer.

“Other than Champagne, the thread that weaves the story together, and Lynn LeMay and Trinity, the other stars are each in only one or two other scenes,” Davy explained in his refined British accent. “The idea was to avoid seeing the same few faces in every scene in the same little room somewhere.”

Another find was Rajah, a Bengal tiger for whom the crew held still and quiet as, unchained and undrugged, the beautiful big cat posed with Champagne, Lynn and Trinity. Naturally, he loved being surrounded by the sexy trio. His role, besides costarring on the box cover, was to confront Champagne as she traveled in her dreams, only for the cat to become Viper, the crimson-haired pornstress whose sex scene with Champagne burns with animal passion.

That aspect is one of several outstanding special effects like you've never seen in adult cinema. People appear out of puffs of smoke; starbursts and storm chronicles 20 years in the lives of a man and a woman who fall in love, break up and reunite, and L'Amour by Marga Aulbach, which depicts a couple's reconciliation after a number of randy detours.

Women are experimenting with and enjoying sex more than ever. "What else in life is as much fun?"

Of appeal to women in these new couples films is the advent of high style. No more raunchy interiors, rings around bathtubs, sleazy-looking actors and actresses, red and black lingerie. The new erotica is elegant interiors, designer sheets, $300 pumps, lingerie of the highest-quality silk. One couples-film maker, referring to the elevated standards by which she chooses male actors, boasts: "All our men are Chippendales or better."

Not to be outdone by the video image, writers are responding to women's desires for quality erotica. Lonnie Barbach, Ph.D., in addition to her two best-selling volumes of erotic short stories, is on the faculty of the University of California's Medical School. Barbach got the idea for her first short-story collection in 1972, while creating a treatment program for nonorgasmic women. She instructed them to fantasize and masturbate.

"The women asked me to give examples of fantasies, and I told them to go to the bookstore and pick up some erotic books," she relates. "They came back and told me the stuff they'd seen—totally male-authored—was all the same: submissive women, no foreplay, no sensuous exploration of each others' bodies, no reason for the sex in the first place. They felt it was tremendously degrading to them and not at all a turn-on." That was the moment Barbach's future books were conceived. She asked herself, How come women don't have their own erotica?

The answer started a lot of wheels spinning. In 1984 Barbach put together an anthology of erotic fiction by women authors, Pleasures. It remained on the best-seller list for months. She followed in 1986 with publication of Erotic Interludes—Tales Told by Women.

Barbach sees women's burgeoning interest in the erotica affecting men. "Men have a lot to gain," she promises. "Men have never gotten a chance to be passive. They've always had to be on the cutting edge of action, make decisions, take charge. With women taking equal responsibility for sex, men now have the opportunity to sit back some of the time."

The negative side, according to Barbach, is that there's more pressure on men to be good lovers. "It used to be that when a man made love to a woman, he was the only lover the woman had ever had. She had nothing to compare it to. Nowadays, a woman knows what's out there, and she knows what she needs to orgasm." This female assertiveness caused anger and confusion among men initially, asserts Barbach. "But most of them are used to it. A general male assumption today is that when a woman feels good about her sexuality, and she's willing to take an assertive role in making sex a pleasurable experience for both partners, the result is a better overall sex life."

Barbach's books have company on bookstore shelves. The Kensington Ladies' Erotica Society formed in 1978 over monthly potluck dinners. The ladies—all ten of them, and all over 40—met to discuss the following questions: Do men and women agree about what's erotic? Are women's experiences different from men's? Do women really know what turns them on, or do they go along accepting and acting out what male writers proclaim to be erotic?

In 1984 they turned out the first of many best-selling erotic short-story collections, Ladies' Own Erotica. Sabina Sedgewick, the group's founder, describes the story behind the scene: "The book grew out of erotic tidbits we scribbled on the backs of envelopes during lunch. We regarded ourselves as women embarking on an experiment and, as a kind of afterthought, wrote and published."

At the end of the book, the ladies instruct readers on how to create their own groups "devoted to talking, thinking and writing erotica." Letters indicate hundreds of groups, located in all parts of the country, are swapping material and providing creative support for each other via computers. "The next step," dreams the founder of one group in Minneapolis, "is a national convention where we meet each other, exchange ideas and invite editors, publishers and illustrators to see our work."

Women are experimenting with and enjoying sex more than ever. In 1980 Cosmopolitan surveyed its readers' sex lives. The questionnaire required that the Cosmo girl answer 79 questions, scissor the page out, put it in an envelope, address it and add her own postage. More than 106,000 Cosmo readers responded. It was the largest response to any magazine survey ever conducted, and the biggest women's sex survey of all time.

The results indicated that most readers were sexually satisfied. On the average they'd had nine lovers. One reader epitomized women's increasing interest in and desire for sex: "I have lovers because sex feels good. What else in life is as much fun as turning on a new man and being turned on in return?"

From 1980 to now many magazines have taken their own polls. The results always show that women think about sex and eroticism a great deal, talk about it and act on it as much as they can. A 29-year-old stockbroker responded to a 1985 "Sex and Success" poll taken by Savvy magazine with an up-front statement about her modus operandi: "At this point, unless he's well-hung, I just wouldn't be interested in him. That sounds incredibly snobby, but it's important to be honest about what you need." A real-estate broker said, "I've bedded down with many of the men to whom I was showing apartments. I'd say to them, 'This is the kitchen, this is the living room, and here's the bedroom. Want to try it out?'"

One surprise is the fact that many women commonly use sex aids during love-making. In fact, the surveys show that women are eager to be a target market for anything sexual. In addition to films and books, they're purchasing vibrators, massagers and dildos in record numbers, although Louisiana recently made it a felony to make or sell artificial genitals.

The Pleasure Chest, a chain of sex-paraphernalia outlets, went from a small business to a multimillion-dollar operation with stores in seven major cities, a home-party division and a huge mail-order department that sells hundreds of different items. The change, according to Stan Farwell, one of the two owners, resulted from a 1975 decision to diversify its products to attract female consumers. Six years later, 30% of its clientele were women. Today women account for more than 50% of sales. "The changes were due to women's demands," claims Farwell. "Women, single or married, gay or straight, are more than happy to turn dildos and lotions into best-sellers."

Dell Williams is the owner and creative force behind Eve's Garden, an erotica boutique on New York's fashionable 57th Street. She started the business in 1974 to "help women become orgasmic—on their own, if necessary—and to help them learn what turns them on." Since those early days of bra-burnings and women's lib marches, Williams's business has increased exponentially. "Women are 'coming out' to being more free sexually," she observes. "They're taking equal responsibility for a good sexual relationship, without waiting for the man..."

Vibrators have been the hottest-selling items from the first day she opened her doors. Lately, she's noticing a new attitude on the part of purchasers. "It used to be statements like, 'If my lover—or husband—knew I was buying this thing, he'd be really angry or he'd really be hurt.' Women are more open now about their use of vibrators. They constantly tell about using them with their partners."

Williams's store was inspired by a workshop she took in 1973, "Liberating Masturbation," given by Betty Dodson. Dodson, author of a number of books about the importance of masturbation and lovingly referred to as the Queen of the Jerkoffs, recently hit the big time with publication of her latest book, Sex for One—the Joy of Selfloving.

The book tries to get a woman to understand that, unless she herself knows what turns her on, it's lunacy to expect that a partner will know. "Masturbation is the way we discover our erotic feelings, the way we learn to like our genitals, and the way we figure out what feels good so that, when we're asked by the men in our lives, we can get past that overused white lie, 'Oh, everything you do feels good.'"

Dodson gives two-day workshops once a month in New York City, geared toward women who never realized that they could come so easily or come so often or, for many women, come at all. The first day is talking about inhibitions, fears, frustrating experiences, taboos, etc. Day 2 is action. "We sit around in a circle, vibrators in hand, doing a female version of a circle jerk. When the first feelings of pleasure strike, everybody looks at everybody else—direct eye contact—and the realization hits: 'This is what's supposed to be so bad, so sinful, so out-of-bounds?' From then on, it's clear sailing. Most women have no trouble going from the first experience of feeling good to full-blown orgasm." After the first flush subsides, Dodson prods the women to try different positions with their vibrators and experiment with all the ways that they can come. "Whether it comes from a lover, a bathtub, a teddy bear, a dildo, a finger, a tongue or a vibrator, an orgasm is an orgasm is an orgasm. My advice is to take as many different kinds as you can get."

Not only are women continuing to push back the limits of what "nice girls" can and can't do; they're redefining the whole idea of what's a nice girl in the first place. In terms of sex, the result can be summed up by two words: more and better.

HUSTLER HUMOR

Four businessmen traveled to Las Vegas for a convention, but on the first night of carousing, the meek one of the group decided to stay in. While sitting on his bed at the hotel, he reached over, grabbed an ornamental lamp and rubbed it for a laugh. To his surprise, a genie flowed out and asked him what his wish was. The mild-mannered, slight fellow explained his request, and the genie said, before returning to the lamp, "As you wish." A moment later the man heard a knock at the door, and there stood three hooded Klansmen. The one holding a noose stepped forward and asked, "You the one who wanted to be hung like a Negro?"

The HUSTLER Dictionary defines feminine-hygiene spray as: around-the-cock protection.

A long-haired youth was hitchhiking through the deep South. He got a ride from a mean-looking redneck trucker. After riding about 30 miles in silence, the youth finally said, "Well, aren't you going to ask me?"

"Ask you what?" replied the trucker.

"If I'm a boy or a girl," answered the youth.

"Don't matter," replied the trucker. "Gonna fuck ya anyway."

During his first three-month evaluation, a rookie cop mentioned to the chief of police that the stress of the job was really starting to wear him down. The chief told the young policeman that whenever he was feeling too tense, he'd go home and screw the living hell out of his wife for about an hour, which always made him feel better and enabled him to return to work with a much better outlook. The rookie considered this piece of wisdom and said it sounded like good advice; he'd give it a try and see if it helped.

The next week the chief called the kid in and asked how things were going. The new cop replied that, in fact, just that morning he'd experienced extreme stress and had followed his boss's suggestion, with great success. He felt great. After being dismissed by his pleased superior, the rookie abruptly halted at the door and said, "Oh, Chief, I almost forgot. Your wife asked me to tell you to pick up some lamb chops for dinner."

A cowboy parked his truck at the curb and walked into a bar for a cold brew to wash the dust down. Looking around, he noticed that all the stools had numbers painted on their backs. After ordering a tall one, he asked the guy sitting next to him, "What's the deal with the numbered seats, man?"

"Well," the guy said, "every hour they call out a number, and if it's yours, you get to go in the back and get laid."

"Aw, bullshit," the cowboy snorted. "Tell me, has your number ever been called?"

"No," the guy replied, "but I know it's on the level, 'cause they've called my wife's number four times already."

Two hunters were forced by a storm to seek overnight shelter in a house occupied by an old widow. When they met again the following hunting season, one asked, "Tell me, Bob, did you screw that old bag we stayed with last year?"

"Yes," admitted Bob, "I'm afraid I did."

"And you used my name—and told her you were me?"

"Yeah, I did that too," laughed Bob. "I didn't knock her up, did I?"

"No, no," smiled Bob's friend. "It's just that she died yesterday and left me the house and a couple of hundred thousand big ones."

Question: What's the hardest part of a male-to-female sex-change operation?

Answer: Sewing in the anchovy.

Why are you so down?" Wade asked a depressed man at the health club. "When I saw you here yesterday, you were arm in arm with that gorgeous aerobics instructor."

"Well, we went to her place and had a few drinks," the man explained. "Then she said, 'Marvin, take off my blouse,' and a moment later, 'Marvin, take off my leotard.' Before long, she said, 'Marvin, take off my bra.' Then, finally, she said, 'Oh, Marvin, take off my panties.'"

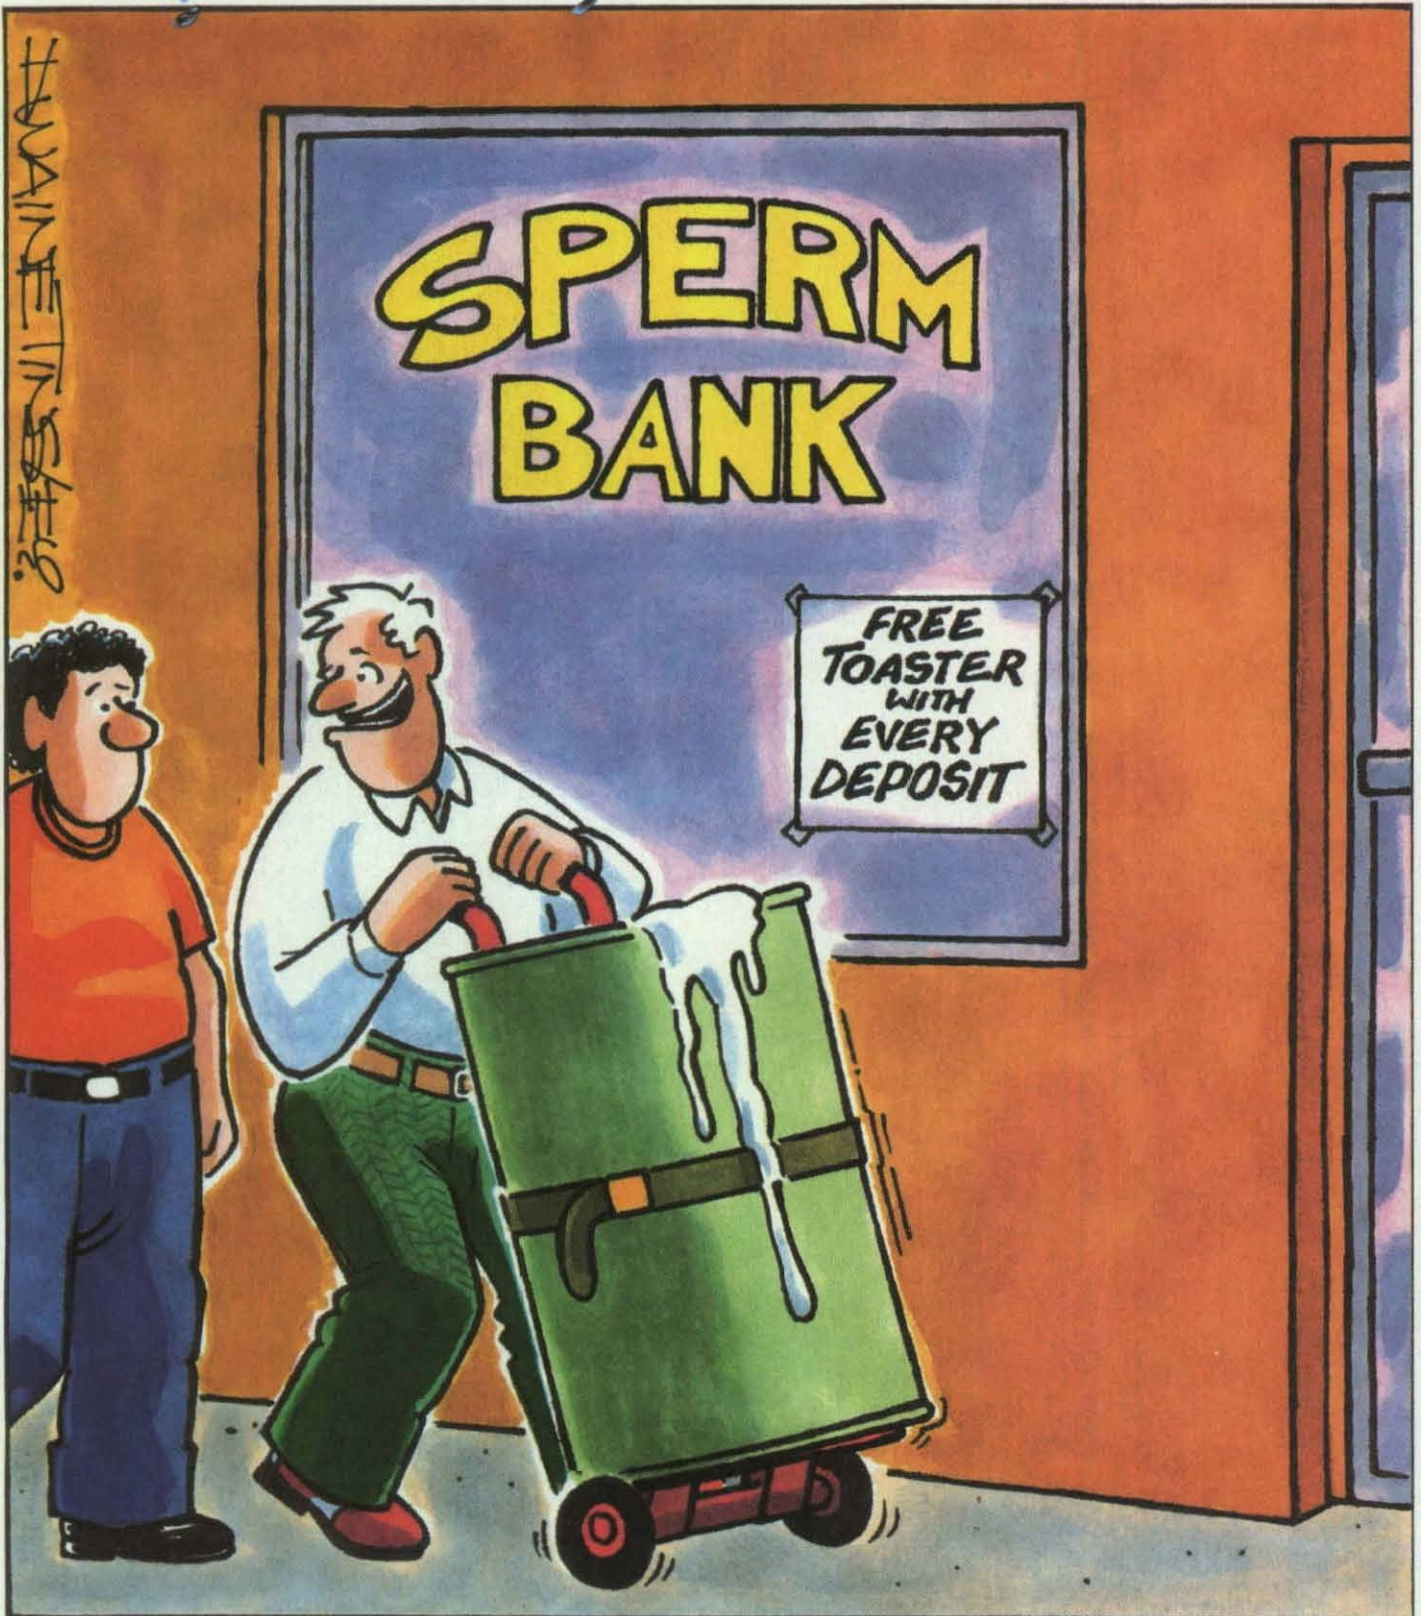

"Oh, you had it made!" Wade moaned enviously, "Was it great?"

"I suppose so. But after that, I couldn't see past Marvin."

THE

Jay Freemont

Gordon W. Kahl, a 63-year-old farmer, was driving his family home from a church meeting in Medina, North Dakota, on the evening of February 13, 1983, when he ran into a roadblock. Shots rang out, and Kahl saw his son gunned down. He pulled a Mini-14 automatic rifle from his gun rack, and a battle took place with local and federal officials—a battle that, Tax Patriots say, was fought because the government wanted to silence Kahl's outspoken criticism of the income-tax system. When the smoke cleared, Kahl, a decorated WWII veteran, had killed two officers and wounded three others.

Thus began the largest manhunt in Arkansas's history. Kahl went into hiding as 100 heavily armed state and federal agents combed the countryside. On June 3, 1983, more than 40 federal agents armed with automatic weapons surrounded Leonard Ginter's farmhouse, where Kahl was purportedly staying. Gordon Kahl was shot at point-blank range in the back of the head. The sheriff who went in with two other officers to get him was shot by one of his own men. The house was then torched and Gordon's body left inside to burn.

One deputy later admitted following orders to pour gasoline down the chimney to start the fire. The coroner reported that one of Gordon's hands and both feet were missing from his body. A few weeks later a New York Times reporter found one of the feet under a refrigerator in the ruins; it had been chopped off.

happened that day. No grand jury has convened to resolve the controversy surrounding Kahl's killing and its bizarre aftermath.

Gordon Kahl confirms a taxpayer's worst nightmare about confronting the IRS. Many within a growing tide of disenchanted Americans claim the IRS acted with the intention of striking terror into the hearts of Americans and portraying tax protesters as violent outlaws.

While Kahl represents an extreme, thousands of Americans are actively questioning the fairness of taxes and the tactics of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). Many call themselves tax patriots, harking back to the Boston Tea Party—a rebellious gesture of our forefathers against the tyranny of taxation that lit the fuse of the American Revolution. Tax patriots today claim their hard-earned rights “to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness” are being denied and violated by the U.S. government.

The IRS reports the number of “people who illegally protest against federal taxes” as growing from 7,661 in 1978 to 53,628 protesters in 1982. “The Freedom [tax] Movement is growing by leaps and bounds. Like the antislavery movement of the 1850s and the civil-rights movement of the 1960s, the Freedom Movement is the human-rights issue for our day and time,” insists Lawrence Beecraft, a Huntsville, Alabama, lawyer.

The IRS claims 1,063 convictions of illegal tax protesters in the past six years. All were convicted of willful failure to file. “We have about 24,000 illegal tax-protest cases per year on which we take enforced collection action,” states Larry Batdorf, spokesman for the IRS national office.

“They can call me an ‘illegal tax protester’ if they let me interpret it my way and say I’m protesting illegal taxes,” maintains John Voss, director of the National Commodity & Barter Association (NCBA). His organization describes its main purpose as “putting a stop to the tyrannical activities of the IRS against the American citizen, and ridding America of the present, counterproductive system of income taxation.”

The IRS seized nine-year-old Carmen Fisher's savings account in Junction City, Oregon, to satisfy an unpaid tax lien against her grandfather, Charles Fisher. They hauled in $70.76 that the little girl had collected in pennies during six years. Under the spotlight of national scrutiny, the IRS admitted a mistake had been made and returned the money.

What's a best-selling author doing in prison? “I wrote a book called How Anyone Can Stop Paying Income Taxes [Freedom Books, Hamden, Connecticut], which sold 175,000 copies and was on the best-seller list for two years,” Irwin Schiff laments. “I am a political prisoner. I am in here for allegedly violating a civil code, not a criminal code. They can only charge you a fine for a civil violation. They cannot incarcerate you.” This statement was made from the Federal Correctional Institute in Lorretta, Pennsylvania, where Irwin currently serves a three-year sentence for tax evasion and fraud.

Schiff is probably the IRS's most outspoken critic, having given hundreds of seminars around the country, lecturing on tax laws and the Constitution. His book states: “1. No American is legally required to file an income-tax return; 2. No American is legally required to submit to a tax audit; and 3. No American is legally required to have income taxes taken out of his pay or to pay quarterly tax estimates.”

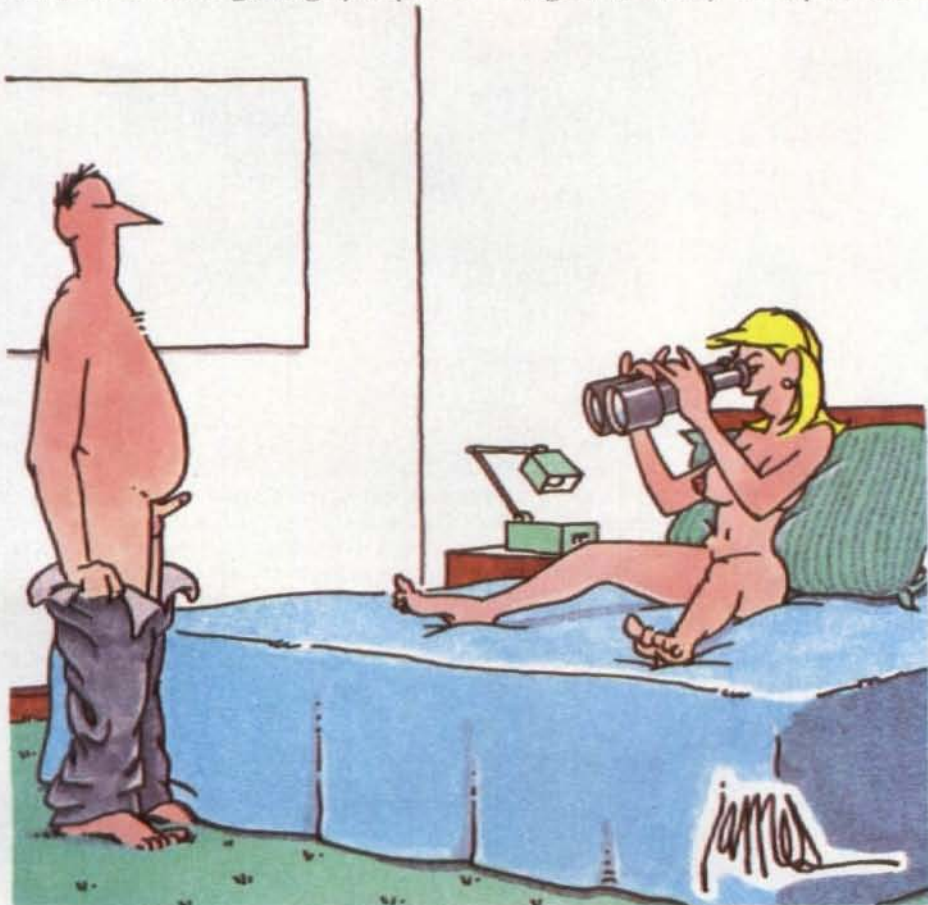

In 1974 Schiff began filing “Fifth Amendment” tax returns on the grounds that any information he provided in his return could—and probably would—be used against him. Schiff's position would seem to be backed by no less an authority than the U.S. Supreme Court. In Garnier v. United States (1976) the Court held, “The information revealed in the preparation and filing of an income-tax return is, for Fifth Amendment analysis, the testimony of a ‘witness’ as that term is used herein.”

“Can the government compel you to supply them with information that can be used against you in a criminal proceeding?” asks Guy G. Curtis, prosecuting attorney for the state of Nebraska. “No. Since no citizen can be compelled to be a ‘witness’ against himself, any statute that attempted to involuntarily require you to file a return would be unconstitutional.”

The Committee to Free Irwin Schiff and Other Political Prisoners issued the following statement: “Irwin is innocent (as are all other so-called ‘tax protesters’) of the crimes for which he is incarcerated. . . federal judges, as well as U.S. prosecutors, knowingly disregard the law and send innocent people to jail in order to intimidate the public into believing that filing and paying federal income taxes is mandatory rather than voluntary. . . .”

got so fed up with taxes that they studied the U.S. Constitution and formed the Golden Mean Team to assist tax patriots in courtroom battles with the IRS. They've participated in more than 300 cases and claim to have won more than any lawyer in the country. Simple country people, the Christensens got involved with the Tax Protest Movement when "Bob came home one day and said he'd go to jail before he'd pay more taxes to finance the destruction of our two sons," Peggy Christensen relates. "I started studying the Constitution to prove him wrong! Instead, I became a born-again taxpayer, or nontaxpayer." Peggy and Bob started filing Fifth Amendment tax returns, and they sent along copies of the Constitution on four-by-eight-foot sheets of paneling, "to make it easier for the tax officials to read."

Peggy and Bob represent what the IRS fears most: common people who've become tax patriots by taking a stand, speaking out and informing the public that the tax system is corrupt.

The central belief of tax patriotism is that the filing of federal income tax is voluntary. Strangely enough, the IRS itself agrees, sort of. IRS guidelines state, "The IRS's primary task is to collect taxes under a voluntary compliance system." When questioned about that, Larry Batdorf, spokesperson for the IRS, states, "The argument for voluntary compliance is asinine, absurd!"

The U.S. Supreme Court in Flora v. United States (1959) decrees, "Our tax system is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint [force]." A dictionary defines voluntary as something "done of one's own free will and without legal obligation."

"Uhhh, overall the payment of taxes is on a voluntary compliance. But, failure to pay taxes puts you in a collection status with the IRS," explains Jim Mack, IRS Information.

"No, it's not voluntary. . . hold on . . . my supervisor reiterated what I just told you: It is a voluntary requirement. It's the law that you should file your taxes," elucidates Ms. Stevenson, IRS Information. "I'll tell you how voluntary it is. People call in to report other people that have been evading taxes. Then the Criminal Investigation Division looks into that individual and finds out, in fact, that they are breaking the law. Then they prosecute that person to the fullest extent! If it was voluntary, you would not be able to prosecute them."

Tax patriots claim the IRS has a history of saying one thing and doing another, relying on unclear laws that can be bent to fit its needs in any dispute with a citizen.

Asseverates Ron Paul, last November's presidential candidate for the Libertarian Party, "The IRS is probably the most abusive of all agencies in the U.S. government. It has no respect for the Constitution. There is no due process of law, and the assumption always is that you are guilty until you the citizen can prove yourself innocent. It is totally un-American."

The IRS abuses raw force to confiscate property, seize bank accounts, sell houses, attach wages and notify employers to disregard an employee's sworn "exempt" W-4 statement.

Paul Adam of Chicago had his $50,000 house put up for auction by the IRS over a disputed $500. The IRS offered the house for a minimum bid of $989.

Tax-patriot claims that the IRS knowingly uses Gestapo tactics seem to be confirmed in the IRS-manual discussion on "exempt" W-4s: "The employer has no legal obligation to intervene with the employee. However, the Service has found that in many situations, this is the more effective means of correcting an erroneous withholding certificate with the least inconvenience to all parties." Herbert Mosher, the IRS district director for Massachusetts, states, "The IRS could not enforce penalty on employers who refused to cooperate with this policy. But," he continues, "let's face it, no employer wants to incur the wrath of the IRS."

Daniel Pilla refused to withhold income tax and social security from his employees' wages at his St. Paul, Minnesota, printing plant. He lost that battle. The IRS sold his plant to pay his tax debts and sent him to prison for seven months. But the war still wages for Pilla, who wrote a book about his experiences, The Naked Truth. "This is supposed to be the land of the free and the home of the brave. But it's the land of the serfs and the home of the slaves!" contends Pilla.

Congressional investigators found that IRS toll-free lines for taxpayer assistance gave wrong answers 22% of the time. Another 15% of the answers were incomplete. IRS Information Publication #920 states, ". . . if we do make an error, you are still responsible for the payment of the correct tax."

Ralph Nader's consumer group tested IRS accuracy. They submitted identical financial records for a fictional family to 12 different IRS offices. Each office computed a totally different amount owed.

Nader's group submitted identical records to 12 IRS offices. Each computed a totally different amount owed.

IRS commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs assured a Senate committee investigating the IRS that he would not anticipate the agency imposing penalties on taxpayers if discrepancies on their returns resulted from erroneous IRS information.

Four-term former congressman George Hansen (R-Idaho) would probably disagree with Commissioner Gibbs's assurances, having recently completed six months in prison for what many people claim was being an outspoken critic of the IRS and Justice Department. "My husband was railroaded into prison by the U.S. Department of Justice for supposedly breaking a law that the Congress never intended to carry criminal penalties," states Connie Hansen.

Hansen was accused of not reporting some of his wife's income on his Congressional financial-disclosure statement. He told the court repeatedly that he sought the advice of the Congressional auditing staff and completed the forms as he was advised. The court refused to take this evidence into account. George became the first and only congressman ever convicted and jailed for violating the 1973 Ethics in Government Act. According to The Justice Times, a monthly tax-patriot newspaper, an estimated 230 members of Congress were then allowed to change forms that would have failed under the same ethics law that sent Hansen to prison.

"I saw the IRS efforts to get rid of Congressman Hansen," states Paul DesFosses, a retired IRS agent and president of the National Coalition of IRS Whistleblowers, a group that supports IRS employees and citizens who speak up against IRS illegal acts. During Hansen's 1976 campaign for reelection, "the IRS Idaho district director, Howard Martin, met with Hansen's opponent and his campaign manager [who is the current Idaho congressman, Richard Stallings] to plan the illegal leak of misinformation to hurt and embarrass Hansen's reelection efforts," spills DesFosses.

Many people feel that Congressman Hansen was persecuted because of his book To Harass Our People: The IRS and Government Abuse of Power (Positive Publications, Washington, D.C.), which details, "Law-breaking government at all levels jails ministers and church members—makes fugitives of women and children—rigs juries, conducts illegal wiretaps and spends billions to send innocent citizens to jail."

DesFosses gives another reason for the IRS's abuse of Congressman Hansen: "Hansen's arrest and imprisonment was an IRS message to those in Congress supporting Taxpayer Bill of Rights." Though it passed the Senate, this new bill is dying in the House of Representatives. If enacted into law, it would require the IRS to prepare a comprehensive statement of taxpayer rights and obligations. It would also allow a citizen the right to recover defense costs and damages if IRS actions were proved unreasonable, careless or reckless and in intentional disregard of statutes. The IRS would also have to issue the taxpayers a Miranda-type warning before interviewing them.

Senator David Pryor (D-Arkansas), co-sponsor of the bill, stated at committee hearings that the legislation has "touched a raw nerve in our population. People are afraid of the IRS. The IRS relies on intimidation and arm-twisting to strike fear in the hearts of those it bullies."

IRS commissioner Lawrence Gibbs responds, "We're not looking for love. We're looking for respect and confidence."

The following testimony was made at Congressional hearings:

- IRS managers routinely pressure revenue officers to seize the property of delinquent taxpayers even when less extreme measures are warranted. —IRS memo

- "It's an awesome organization with powers that are virtually unchecked." —IRS employee for 18 years

- "...the most hated organization in the United States. People had rather deal with the KGB. I was once proud to be a revenue agent."

- "For five years I have been consumed by a nightmare that began with a seemingly routine IRS audit. Taxpayers have no rights in dealing with the IRS. They've totally destroyed my life!"

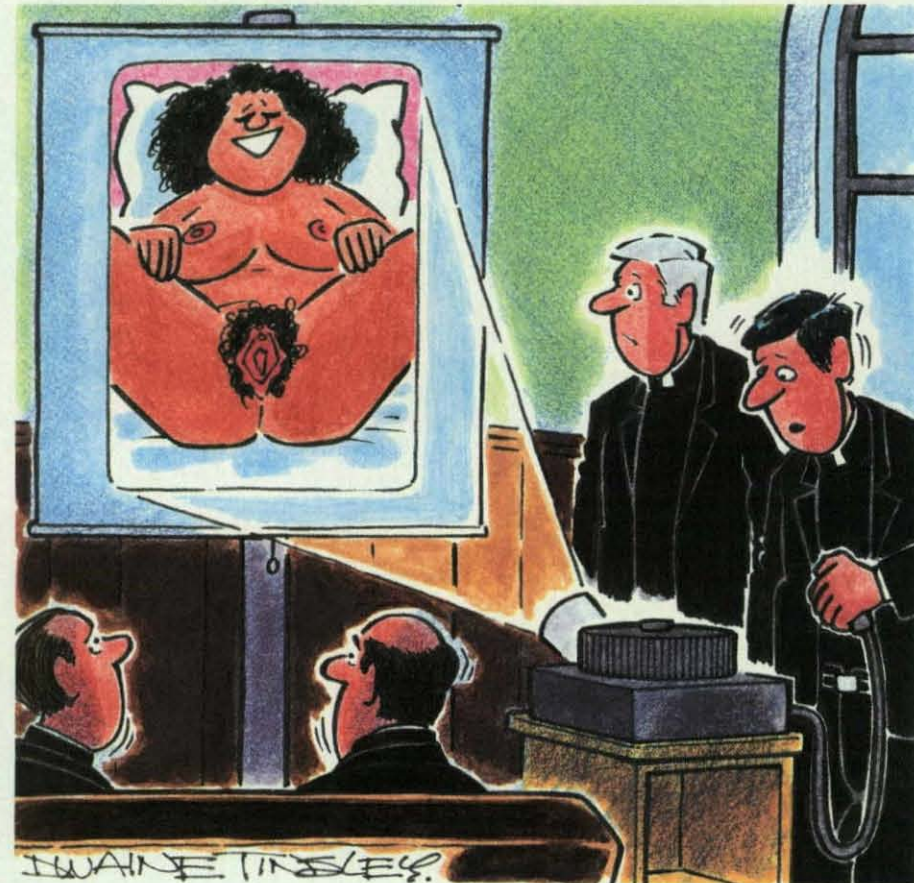

- "We are victims of an IRS mentality that believes all taxpayers are criminals and should be punished."

- "We have in the IRS an agency that simply has too much power." —Senator Carl Levin (D-Michigan)

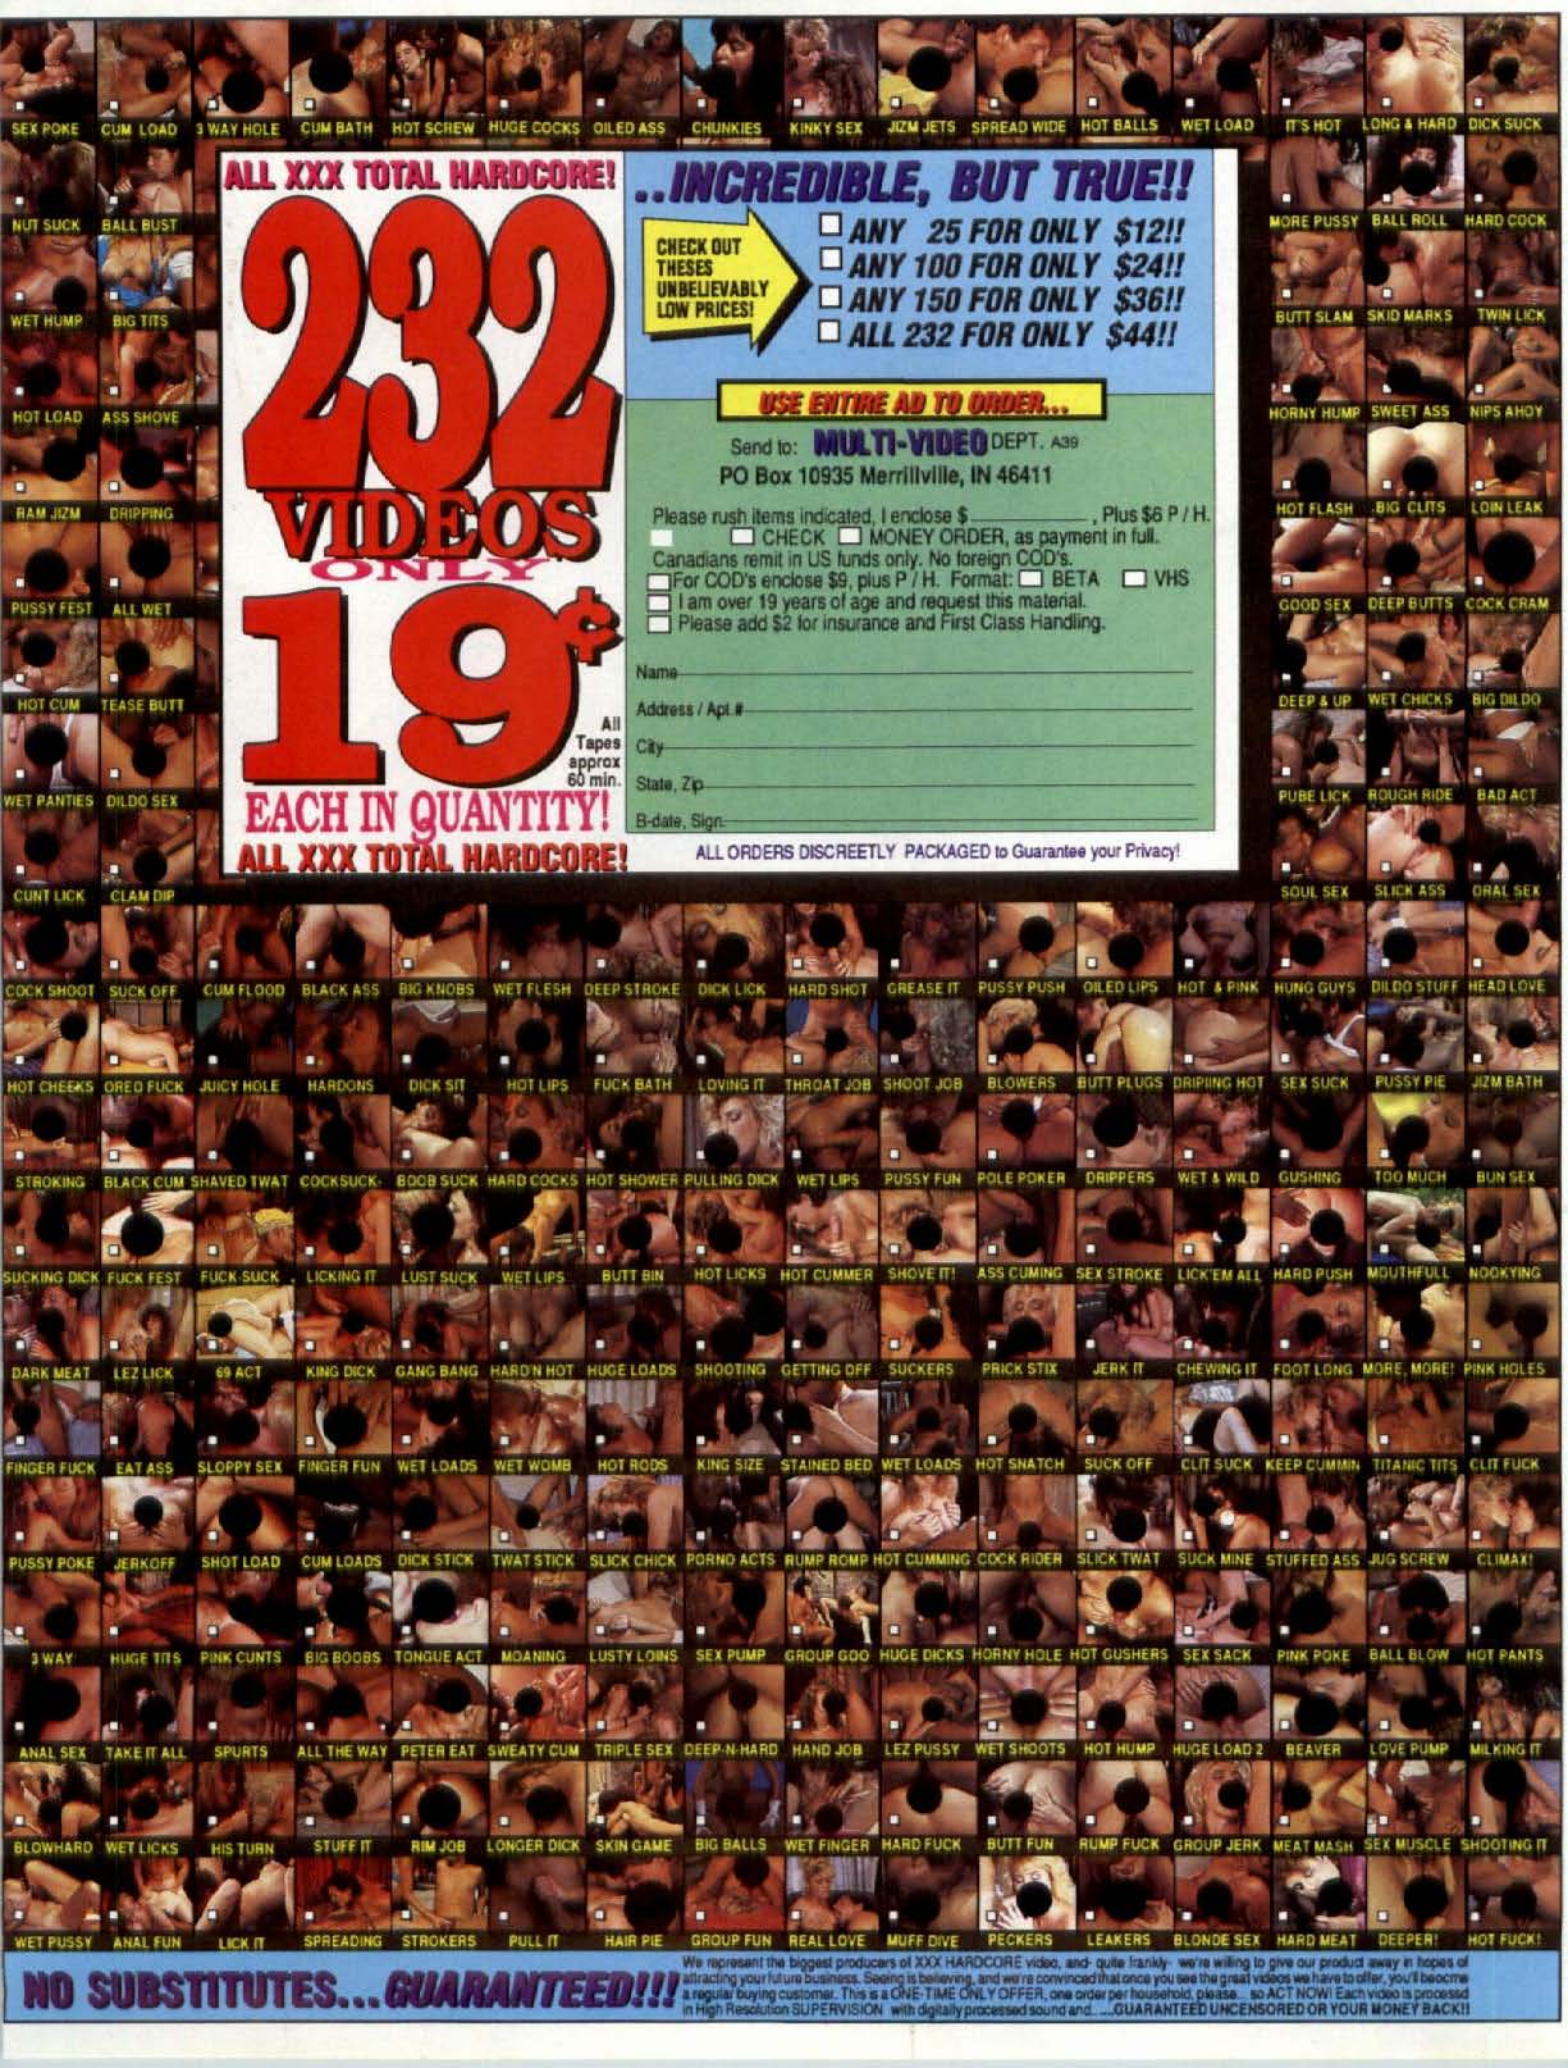

- Even congressmen are afraid of the IRS, according to Senator Pryor, who stated that most lawmakers declined to help sponsor the bill out of fear that they would be audited.

"The real sad part about this Taxpayer's Bill of Rights is that taxpayers need special protection. Why shouldn't the

"Hundreds of thousands of people are on the IRS hit list...any government criticism can get you on it."

Constitution protect them? And why does Irwin Schiff, who defends himself on the Constitution, go the jail? That tells us how far we've drifted from protecting civil liberties in this country!" says Ron Paul, former Libertarian presidential candidate.

In 1975 the IRS started the Fremont County Returns Compliance Program in Idaho. Armed agents went door-to-door demanding proof of filed income-tax returns. The National Treasury Employees Union intervened, complaining to the IRS that the program was likely to provoke violence against the agents.

"Have you ever looked at the wrong end of a .357 Magnum?" asks John Voss of the National Commodity and Barter Association (NCBA) as he describes the day "15 to 20 gun-toting federal agents" burst into the NCBA offices in Denver and threw everybody up against the wall. They "hailed everything away that wasn't nailed down. A week later the judge ordered everything returned. The whole raid was illegal."

Hitler consolidated his power in Germany, in part, through a taxing system that allowed the government to invade every individual's private life. The Gestapo turned neighbor against neighbor, urging them to turn each other in for crimes against der Fuehrer.

"Snitch fees are fairly substantial," reports Paul DesFosses of the IRS Whistleblowers. "Bank tellers in Las Vegas or Reno sometimes make more money from their referral reports or snitches than they do from their jobs. Somebody will win a large amount of money and come in to get a cashier's check payable to himself. The tellers run down to the IRS with that report."

DesFosses also says, "Attorneys sometimes turn in clients. Especially divorce attorneys. Where they have all of the records of the wife, they'll turn in the husband. If they have the records, they can obtain 50% of what the IRS collects. The poor husband doesn't have the records to defend himself. He's in a pretty bad spot."

IRS Criminal Investigation Division responded enthusiastically when asked if there were rewards for snitching someone off: "There sure is! It's based on the value of the information turned in," gushes Special Agent Grant Covey. "We don't reveal there was an informant, let alone reveal the identity of the informant," Covey laughs. "I've been real busy today!"

"Our tax system is supposed to be a voluntary system. People are supposed to want to support their government," comments Jim Morrow in the newspaper Freedom. "Why don't these people want to chip in? Part of the answer may lie in the internal revenue code itself. An individual's fair share of taxes is determined by a set of laws and rules so complex that it requires a certified public accountant to translate them. The complexity of the code results in and then masks countless injustices perpetrated by IRS agents who say they are 'only doing their jobs.'"

IRS Tries to Steal Quadriplegic's Wheelchair

After a two-year battle, Texas patriot quadriplegic Sammy Lott was forced to file bankruptcy to stop the IRS from illegally confiscating his home, wages, wheelchair and specially equipped van, reports The Justice Times (Clinton, Arkansas). Though confined to a wheelchair since a near-fatal automobile accident in 1973, Lott has been self-supporting, receiving no government assistance. In three court hearings requested by the IRS, the IRS failed to show up. Finally, the judge fined the IRS $600 for Lott's attorney fees and reduced the agency's "exaggerated" claim of $20,000 owed by Lott to $1,300.

"Our federal tax system is utterly impossible, utterly unjust and completely counterproductive. The present system of taxation reeks with injustice and is fundamentally un-American. It has earned a rebellion, and it's time we rebelled," pontificated President Ronald Reagan in May of 1983 at Williamsburg, Virginia.

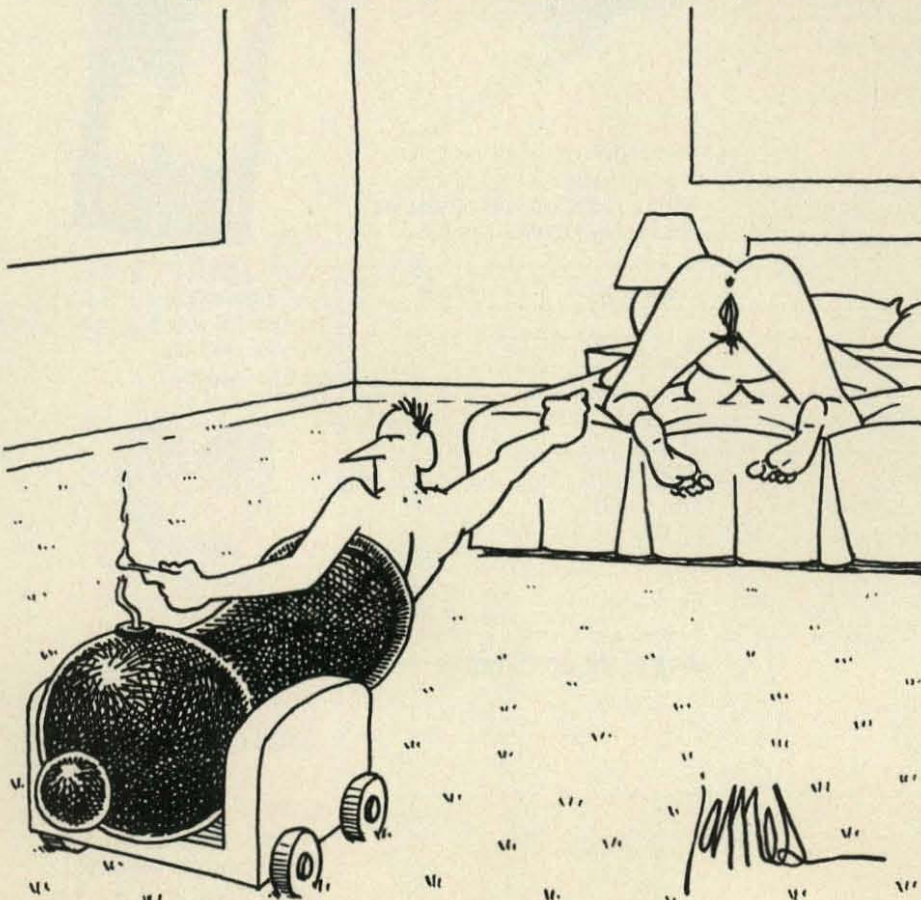

In the first five years of Reagan's Administration tax-fraud convictions increased dramatically (18%). There was an 86% increase, 11 months to 21 months, in the average length of tax-fraud prison sentences handed out from 1980 to 1985.

The Constitution stipulates that all citizens have equal rights and receive equal treatment under the law. Contrary to that concept, the IRS targets people for prosecution, keeping a tax-protester hit list.

"That's hogwash. There never has been a hit list!" says IRS national spokesman Larry Batdorf.

Paul DesFosses disagrees, presenting sample pages out of the "IRS Tax Protester List." "There are hundreds of thousands of people on the IRS hit list or tax-protester list. John Wayne and Howard Jarvis were put on because they supported the Property Tax Proposition 13. War protesters have been put on. Any kind of government criticism can get you on it," says DesFosses.

IRS managers instruct their agents how to "educate" judges and pressure them to find a person guilty.

Supreme Court Shoots Down Freedom of Information Act

Would you like to know if you're on the hit list? Forget it! The Supreme Court, in November 1987, ruled that the public has no right to get information kept by the IRS. Tax patriots see this as a blatant affirmation of what they've been proclaiming all along, that the judiciary protects the IRS.

"This ruling essentially immunizes the IRS from public scrutiny," points out David Vladeck, a lawyer with the Public Citizen Litigation Group. "Ironically, this is the one agency that every American deals with annually. What the court has done is erect an insurmountable obstacle to obtaining IRS records."

This gives the IRS virtually complete protection from outsider monitoring of their activities.

The IRS functions on a level that totally ignores the U.S. Constitution. Our Founding Fathers thought our most important rights were those of free speech and a free press. We are supposed to be able to criticize the government without them sending us to Siberia.

But what would happen to the author of an article critical of the IRS? "If you wrote an article advocating any of these things, you might find yourself being considered a tax protester, and we might be taking a look at your returns," avers Robert Giannangeli of IRS public affairs.

Cruel and Unusual Punishment?

E. Kevan Rowlee is currently under indictment for 50 counts of fraud, mail fraud and "conspiracy to hinder IRS activities." If convicted of all counts, he could be sentenced to 220 years in prison and fined $1.9 million. Rowlee is a tax protester and a social commentator—a writer. His crimes are sending letters to the editors of local newspapers and publishing the New York Patriot's Society newsletter.

Most people involved believe Rowlee's trial is a direct attack by the IRS on First Amendment rights. They describe the case as a "landmark trial," a battle representing the rights of all U.S. citizens.

Rowlee says, "They've charged me with telling people that the banks are going to fail, that American banks won't protect your privacy. They're not making any bones about it. They're trying to jail me for the rest of my life."

Thus far the court has disallowed or disbarred four attorneys from representing Rowlee. The Attorney General apparently doesn't want to face any attorneys with track records of winning cases against the IRS.

"I watched the booted marshals and their attack dogs prowling the corridors of the federal courthouse, and I saw the fear in the faces of the defense attorneys and witnesses. There could certainly be nothing less equitable behind the Iron Curtain," states Paul DesFosses as he describes a "trial" of six tax patriots in St. Paul, Minnesota, who were convicted of "conspiracy to hinder IRS activities." DesFosses was there to present the court two top secret IRS documents, which he says would prove the IRS charges were without substance. The judge would not allow them as evidence.

Tax patriots believe it's almost impossible to get a fair trial against the IRS. Whistleblowers documented IRS abuses including:

- memos from IRS managers who instruct their agents how to "educate" judges and attorneys and pressure them to find a person guilty;
- how the IRS has worked with the U.S. postal inspectors, illegally opening citizens' mail;
- IRS coaching of witnesses to change their testimony the night before a trial;
- threatening citizens with audits and grand jury investigation if they refuse to stop criticizing the IRS.

"Many attorneys are scared to death to represent their clients because of the fear of IRS retaliation. You can imagine what kind of representation their clients get," states Paul DesFosses.

"They've done a good job of brainwashing and intimidating the public," sums up John Voss of NCBA, who won his "willful failure to file" case against the IRS.

"None of the major newspapers and news media will print what my dad [Irwin Schiff] talks about. They don't want to antagonize the IRS by letting the truth come out," flatly states Peter Schiff.

Our Founding Fathers repeatedly warned of the sinister power of federal taxation. Patrick Henry, one of our heroes of the American Revolution, uttered these prophetic words in 1788: "Unlimited power of taxation will produce such dreadful oppression as the people cannot possibly bear. The federal sheriff may commit what oppression, make what distresses he pleases, and ruin you with impunity. How are you to tie his hands? Have you any sufficient means of preventing him from sucking your blood? Thus thousands of your people will be most shamefully robbed!"

"You don't think you're being a little overly precautions?"

In light of that claim, consider the recent unsettling findings from the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research: Dr. Monte S. Meltzer, the institute's chief of cellular immunology, has discovered a new variation of the AIDS virus that can hide for indeterminate periods of time in immune-system cells called macrophages.

What this means is that the virus can reproduce within the macrophages without stimulating the production of antibodies to fight the disease. A person could therefore test negative for AIDS antibodies while still harboring the disease in the cells of his immune system.

Meltzer cautions that the research should not cause widespread alarm in the general population, since this new AIDS variant was first discovered in the macrophages of a high-risk individual. He adds that his research team has developed a special macrophage test.

Although unavailable at this time, Meltzer adds that his new test could prove extremely beneficial in defining ambiguities in existing AIDS-test results.

Findings from the Army Institute were released at an international AIDS conference in Stockholm, as were those of the City of Hope. Such sharing of information within the medical community will no doubt benefit AIDS-testing efforts as a whole.

As for the City of Hope's genetic landmark, the impact could be enormous. Wallace and Rossi stress that their technique must be refined and tested on many additional blood samples; however, Rossi says that he is optimistic that scientific refinements necessary to demonstrate the practicality of the test as a rapid, inexpensive and sensitive screening examination will be worked out within a period of about one year.

Due to its increased sensitivity, it is conceivable that this test could greatly reduce the risk of tainted-blood transfusions. Perhaps of even greater importance is the impact this development could have on future research of experimental drugs.

The technique has already been applied to test the ability of some drugs to prevent the virus from reproducing. According to Rossi, "We can use this sensitivity to directly measure the effect of drugs designed to stop the AIDS virus from converting its genetic material (RNA) into the DNA form in which it is incorporated and reproduced within human white blood cells."

Quicker development of new drugs might retard and, hopefully, put an end to the ravaging effects of the disease on those already afflicted.

But for the rest of us, who at least want to start with the knowledge of where we really stand, this new testing could produce a better—and quicker—answer. 🍷

After Zagury's initial inoculation, it became clear that additional booster shots would be needed. Although his body had responded positively to the vaccine, the effects were limited and short-lived. However, once the series of three boosters had been administered, his body immediately began to show signs of immunity. Within a few months, his white blood cells effectively destroyed HIV, and in lab tests his antibodies crippled numerous strains of the virus.

Although Zagury appears to be "immune ready," there is only one way to know for sure: actual exposure to AIDS. But even Zagury is unwilling to risk that. Instead, his research team is planning to initiate a large-scale clinical trial of the vaccine using high-risk volunteers. This group will then be monitored for two to five years in order to determine if the vaccine is effective in the field.

One research team in the U.S. has begun clinical testing of the vaccine. The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID) in Bethesda, Maryland, began their study of 54 volunteers this fall. Yet, according to NIAID spokeswoman Sandy Hecker, instead of picking up where Zagury left off, they've had to go back to the basics.

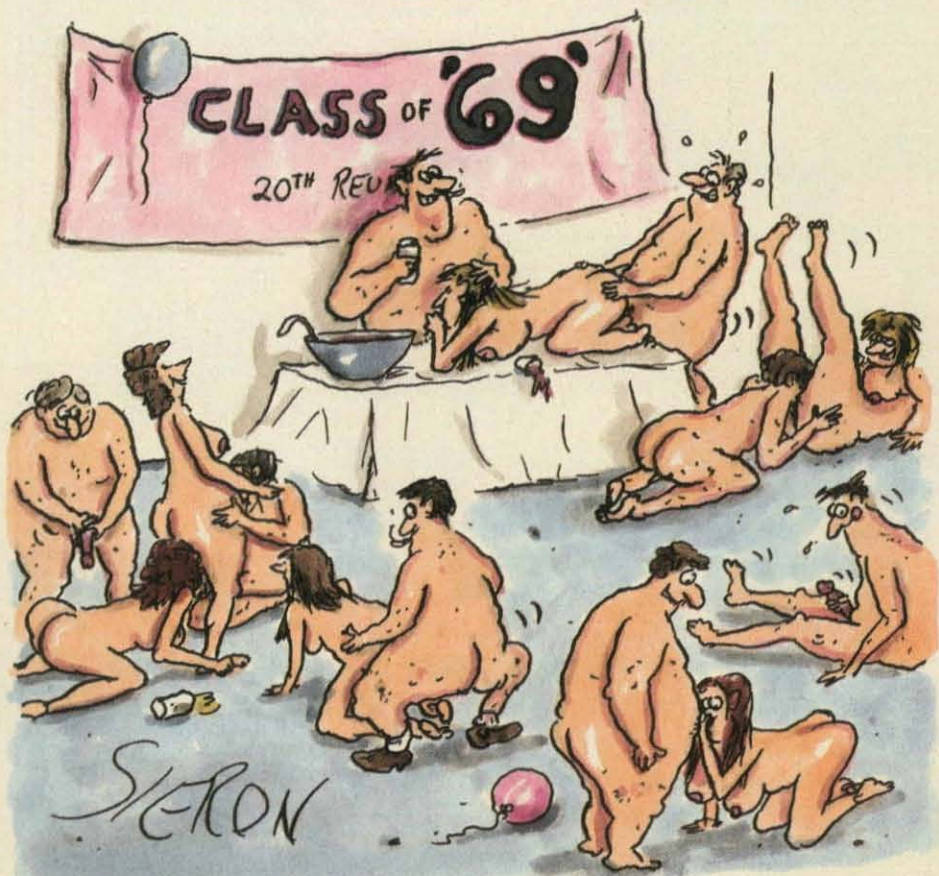

"Unlike Zagury [who worked in Zaire], we needed approval from the Food and Drug Administration," Hecker explains. "They specify very precisely how the trials should be carried out so that it's as safe as possible for the volunteers. The way they do that is to test the vaccine in three phases."

According to Hecker, the purpose of Phase 1—which entails inoculating volunteers with a single follow-up booster—is to insure that the vaccine is not toxic to humans and to secure preliminary data on immune response. If Phase 1 proves successful, next year they will embark on Phase 2: inoculating a larger number of people and fine-tuning the dosage. Then, in Phase 3, researchers will initiate long-term monitoring of additional subjects to determine the serum's effectiveness.

Although scientists are anxious to develop an AIDS vaccine, this obviously isn't the sort of project that gets completed overnight. "Our director is saying that we won't know whether the vaccine is effective until at least the mid-1990s," Hecker admits. "That's because we'll have to wait five years to see if the test subjects become infected."

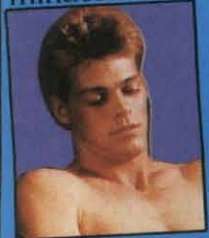

The first phase of the study is being completed at six NIAID vaccine-evaluation units across the country. Each unit is testing nine healthy, seronegative volunteers—six of whom receive the vaccine and three of whom receive a placebo. The researchers then closely monitor the subjects for a year, giving them blood tests and physical exams.

Of course, it's not all fun and games for the test subjects. According to Tom Crehore, a participant of an earlier AIDS-vaccine program run by the National Cancer Institute, there's always the fear that something may go wrong. "There were risks," Crehore told listeners of the Larry King Live talk show. "But we have got to do something about AIDS."

Although it's impossible to contract AIDS from the serum, according to Sandy Hecker, participants in any experimental-vaccine program have reason to be concerned. "There are always risks," she states, adding that, statistically, the risk of death is only about one per million in this instance, but it can't be ruled out. Normally, if there is a complication, it only results in a skin rash at worst.

In any case, it's all for an extremely noble cause. Through these studies researchers hope to develop a vaccine that can be administered to any person who is at risk of coming into contact with the AIDS virus. In fact, immunologists go so far as to envision a vaccine similar to those developed for smallpox and diphtheria, which can be administered to children, thus providing them a lifetime of immunity to one of the most potentially fatal diseases of the century. 🐼 she'll probably just walk off in a snit. Winning a mesoecto is often a drawn-out process, involving substantial verbal reassurance and a gentle touch.

Go very slow on the physical level with one of these women. With an endo lady, for instance, it sometimes works to jump right into stripping off her clothes—they're tight and ill-fitting; she doesn't like them anyway. With a mesoecto, by contrast, a good first move is to gently take her hand. If she doesn't pull it back, a next step might be a peck on the cheek, then, finally, a short kiss on the lips. This girl may view aggressive touching as a physical threat, which will result in her withdrawing from you pronto. "In dealing with mesoectos," Vaughan advises, "forget your interest and concentrate on theirs. Never try to force fast decisions on them; it's not their nature. They are the proverbial 'tire kickers.'" Most mesoecto ladies do a lot of kicking en route to the bedroom.

Ectomorphs are at the opposite end of the spectrum from endomorphs. Ectos "are the thin, artistic-looking individuals, with long, slender hands and feet. They are very shy, gentle, reserved, indoor, thinking types who prefer to be alone in a protected environment," says Vaughan. The quest for security, emotionally and physically, is their driving force. Ectos are fragile, brainy sorts who need to be treated with much respect. Praise this girl's mind before you heap compliments on her body.

To bed an ecto girl, be gentle, reassuring and double whatever time you think it will take for her to warm up. Once in bed, keep firmly in mind that she's sensitive in every way. Don't touch too hard. If you do, she'll complain. If you persist, she'll be gone.

Just as every woman belongs to one of the five basic body types, so do you. She has tendencies and wants in accordance with her body type; you just as strongly have yours. "Look for traits similar to yours when choosing a mate or friendship partner. The more differences in personality, the more understanding and adjustment will be required for a harmonious relationship," Vaughan notes. "Quite often in men-women relationships," he goes on, "the little differences add up until they are major problems. Those 'little' differences are the basic differences in personality that were not considered when the relationship first started."

If you're a muscular mesomorph like Jim McMahon, for instance, the differences between yourself and a rail-thin ectomorph or a Ms. Santa Claus lookalike may be too large to want to overcome. In a one-night stand, when the temperatures of you and the lady are boiling, the differences may seem negligible. Over the long term, however, the differences mount until the relationship crumbles under their weight.

"Look at couples who have been in lengthy relationships," says a Westwood, California, marriage and family counselor. "You'll see the validity of body typing. Most couples who endure are exactly the same body type or, at most, one type different."

But that is not an absolute law. Assures Dr. Vaughan, "Opposites do seem to attract. Sometimes a person will need opposite traits to give balance." A rough-and-tumble meso man, for instance, may be strongly drawn to the delicate tendencies of an ecto lady. The relationship is not doomed if body-type-based differences are taken into account and compensated for. "It's the extremes and excesses not understood and dealt with that cause problems," Vaughan assures. 🐼

ENLARGE YOUR PENIS TO IT'S MAXIMUM! HAVE ERECT MEASUREMENTS OF 9, 10, EVEN 12 FULL INCHES!

The MAXUM-TEN is the ONLY PENIS DEVELOPER you will ever need!

Is the size of your penis bringing you down? Sure, the medical authorities say the size doesn't count; but as long as women have a need to be filled, they will demand the full measure of devotion. And no amount of psychological reassurance will fill the gap between expectation and reality.

Now, with a simple device you can follow in the footsteps of thousands of men who have proven that there is a way to INCREASE PENIS SIZE and THICKNESS! The device is called the MAXUM-TEN ELECTRIC VACUUM ENLARGER. A safe and proven natural way to add inches to penis length and thickness. With the MAXUM-TEN, you will see yourself grow to dimensions you never thought possible.

HOW CAN THE MAXUM-TEN ELECTRIC VACUUM ENLARGER INCREASE PENIS LENGTH & THICKNESS?

Your erection is caused by blood flowing into hollow caverns inside your penis. The caverns fill with blood and your penis grows in size and thickness and becomes stiffer and stiffer until the caverns are filled with all the blood they can hold. BUT, IF YOU INCREASE THE CAPACITY OF THE CAVERNS BY MAKING THEM BIGGER, THEY HOLD MORE BLOOD and you have a correspondingly longer, thicker penis. Regular use of the MAXUM-TEN gently urges the caverns to expand... expand... expand. You'll see the astonishing results the first time you use your MAXUM-TEN. Your penis will grow inside the clear, picture window sleeve. Immediately you'll see just how really BIG... how really FAT... how LONG... how HARD and STIFF your own penis can get! And after regular sessions with the MAXUM-TEN you'll probably find as do most men that these size gains don't go away! They become a part of you to thrill and excite her!

THE MAXUM-TEN IS SIMPLY THE MOST POWERFUL ENLARGEMENT SYSTEM YOU CAN PURCHASE ANYWHERE! AT ANY PRICE!

This powerful, totally electric unit (U.L. approved) is equipped to plug into any wall outlet to give you continuous, even sucking power until you shut it off! Unlike noisy electric vacuum enlargers costing upwards of $100 — the MAXUM-TEN is "quite a whisper." This sophisticated instrument is by far the state of the art in penis enhancing machinery. It has taken time, money and first-class engineering to produce what many have called the "Rolls Royce" of vacuum enlargers. The MAXUM-TEN is a finely crafted precision instrument designed to create the vacuum needed to make the male organ LONG and THICKER. If you are truly serious about penis enlargement — the MAXUM-TEN will do the job for you!

HUSTLER

April edition on sale February 21, 1989

PINK IN ALL THE RIGHT PLACES

Do incredibly huge tits, wet T-shirt contests and two nude sluts on skateboards sound good? Our centerfold next month is Toppsy (55DD-23-34)Curveywho displays her compact bod and monstrous breasts in pics you'll swear aren't real. Then we change the pussy pace when a comely brunette splits her pink as she suns her choice meat into a mouth-watering tan. You'll also glide along with two skateboarding sirens who lip-grind and tongue-fuck each other between flips. You're then invited to a HUSTLER wet T-shirt contest that becomes a furious fuck-for-all when a few chesty tarts heat the crowd into a frenetic orgy. With this lineup of megatits and pussy, you should be April showering spunk until summer.

PUSSY EXPRESS

Next month, writer James Farley puts the mail-box flag up as he surveys postal porn and other carnal missives in "HUSTLER's Guide to Mail-Order Sex." Learn what goodies come special delivery, where to order them and how to get the most bang for your buck.

FAT LIPS & CAULIFLOWER EARS

While countless pugilists risk their lives in pursuit of championship belts, the money belts of boxing promoters Don King and Bob Arum grow dramatically. In "One Ring Circus: The Low-Blow-by-Blow of Boxing Promoters" writer Ron Chepesiuk tells how these two manipulators reap millions from boxing without taking a punch and how they've fought for control of Iron Mike Tyson.

DATA OF DECEIT

To paraphrase former British Prime Minister Disraeli, there are three kinds of lies: lies, big lies and statistics. April's AIDSWatch focuses on the latter in "The Numbers Game" by Larry Wichman, whose investigation of the statistical claims made by AIDS researchers uncovers shocking differences between the headline numbers and actual cases.

HOT NEW INFO AND SOME BRAND-NEW BEAVERS!

Breaking up is hard to do, but it's especially hard on your cock. In April's Sex Play, "Divorce and Your Dick," Robert McGarvey explains how divorced men struggle with their new sexual freedom. If we were them, the first thing we'd do is turn to April's Beaver Hunt, where babes who could be living next door spread their hot slots in glossy color. Next month also features layers of lewd laughs and sick satire in Bits & Pieces; and volumes of video vixenry and raunch reviews in the invaluable HUSTLER Erotic Entertainment. Only an April fool would miss all this.
